The Sadduces taught the Soul to be annihilated at the hour of Death, and consequently they believed no Resurrection nor World to come, neither Angels nor Spirits. They ascribed nothing unto Fate or Predestination, but all Things altogether to a Man's free Will. They rejected all Traditions, and allowed no more Scripture than the five Books of Moses. In most of their Opinions they were contrary to the Scribes and Pharisees, but joyned with them both in opposing Christ. Like Sampson's Foxes, being tied together by their Tails, they looked divers ways; and in those Tails they carried Fire-brands, to destroy God's Harvest. Which they had infallibly done, if they had been but able.

Some derive their Name from Sadoc, their first Founder, who lived about the Time of Alexander the Great. Others, from Sadoc, an Hebrew Word signifying Justice; the Sadduces pretending to such a strictness in point of Justice, as if they would justify themselves before God's Tribunal. The Occasion of the Sect or Heresy is said to arise from a Mistake of Antigonus, a right-learned Man; who, teaching that we ought not to serve God, as Servants do their Masters, for the Hope of Reward, occasioned Sadoc and Baitus, two of his Auditors, to conceive, that there was no Reward nor Recompence for a godly Life, and consequently no Resurrection nor World to come.

Salick, or Salique, Salique.

As, the Salique Law, a French Law which excludes Females from the Crown, la Loi Salique, qui exclut les Femelles de la Couronne.

'Tis This is the Law, by which the Crown of France may not descend unto the Females, or fall from the Lance to the Ditch, as the French Saying is. Which Law, one undertaking to make good out of holy Writ, urged that Text of S. Matthew, where is it said, Mark the Lilies, (which are the Arms of France) and see how they neither labour nor spin. This Law is generally pretended to have been made by Pharamond, the first King of the French; and that the Words Si aliquis, so often used in it, gave it the Name of the Salique Law. But then Pharamond had no Title to France, nor so much as one foot of Land on that side of the Rhine.

Others say, it was made by Charles the Great, after the Conquest of Germany; where the incontinent Lives of the Women living about the River Sala, in the modern Misnia, gave both the Occasion and the Name. De Terrâ verò Salicâ nulla Portio Hereditatis Mulieri veniat, sed ad virilem Sexum tota Terrâ Hereditas perveniat. The Meaning whereof, according to the Learned Selden, grounded upon a Record of the Parliament of Bourdeaux cited by Bodinus, is, that in Lands holden of the King by Knights Service, or the like Military Tenure, the Male Children should Inherit only, because the Females could not perform those Services for which those Lands were given, and by which they were holden. But Haillan, one of the best French Writers, makes this Law to be of a much later Date; who affirms, that it was never heard of in France, till the Time of Philip the Long, Brother of Lewis X. This Philip came to the Throne Anno 1315. Who, to exclude his Brother's Daughter, he, partly by Threats, Promises, and other Practices, caused a Law to pass, to which he gave the Name of Salique Law, for disabling Women from the Succession to the Crown. And he was served in the same kind himself by his Brother Charles; who, following his Example, excluded, on the same Pretence, his Nieces Joan and Margaret, the Daughters of Philip.

The Sanctuary was the most holy place of the Tabernacle, wherein God gave visible Tokens of his Presence, le Santuaire étoit le Lieu très saint du Tabernacle, où Dieu donnoit des Marques visibles de sa Présence.

The high Priest went but once a Year into the Sanctuary, therein to offer Sacrifice, le souverain Sacrificateur n'entroit qu'une fois l'Année dans le Santuaire, pour y offrir le Sacrifice.

They have robbed thy Sanctuary, ils ont depouillé ton Santuaire.

There he took Sanctuary, c'est là son Asyle.

Or thus. As, no Man takes Sanctuary in Falshood, who has Truth on his side, on ne recourt pas au Mensonge, quand on a la Vérité.

To take Sanctuary in a Place, to fly thither for Shelter, se réfugier en quelque Lieu.

Sanctuaries were Places privileged by the Prince, for the Safegard of Mens Lives that were Offenders; being founded upon the Law of Mercy, and upon the great Reverence, Honour, and Devotion, which the Prince bore to the Place whereto he granted such a Privilege. This seems to have taken beginning from the Cities of Refuge, mentioned Ex. 21. In Imitation whereof, first the Athenians, then Romulus, erected such a Place of Immunity, which they called Asylum. The like did the Roman Emperours. But, among all others, the ancient Kings of England attributed most to the Sanctuaries, permitting them to shelter such as had committed both Felonies and Treasons, so that within forty Days they acknowledged their Fault, and submitted themselves to Banishment. During which Time, if any Layman expelled them, he was Excommunicated; if any Clerk, he was made Irregular. But, after forty Days, no man might relieve them. Of these there were many in England, but one more famous than the rest at S. Johns of Beverley, called by the Saxons Fridstoll, and which had this Inscription; Hæc Sedes Lapidea Freedstoll dicitur, i. e. Pacis Cathedra ad quam Reus fugiendo perveniens omni modo habet Securitatem. Which Sanctuary, and all others of this kind, were by degrees taken away.

Sanhedrim, or Sanhedrin, Cour de Justice parmi les anciens Juifs.

The Jews had three Sanhedrims, one Great, and two Lesser. The great Sanhedrim, by them called Sanhedrim Gedola, was their highest Court of Judicature, or Supreme Council; which consisted of the High Priest, and seventy Seniors or Elders.

From which Number it was called by 'em the Court of 71. Judges. The same was in a manner their Parliament, to consult about, to judge, and decide the greatest Matters that could arise in their Ecclesiastical or Civil Common-wealth. As, to determine Controversies that might happen concerning their High Priest, true and false Prophets, Differences betwixt Nation and Nation, Tribe and Tribe, &c. This high Court was first, by the Commandment of God, Instituted in the Wilderness by Moises; whilst, under his Conduct, the Children of Israel were on their Journey out of Egypt towards the Land of Promise. And afterward it continued still in vigour, till our Saviour's Passion.

Inferiour to this Sanhedrim were the two Lesser. The chief whereof consisted of 23. Judges; to whom belonged the Decision of some weighty Suits, and capital Causes. Whereas the least consisted only of three Judges, from whence called the Court of three Judges. To the Examination and Decision of which Court the most petty Actions were subject, as private Quarrels, Thefts, and the like.

Now, whereas the great Sanhedrim, after the Jews Possession of the Land of Promise, and the Settlement of their Common-wealth, was only held in Jerusalem; these inferiour Courts were erected in several Places, according to the Exigence and Convenience of their Country. From these Courts the Jews might appeal to the Supreme Court, but from this there lay no Appeal.

Wo unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, Hypocrites, (Luke 11. 44.) Malheur sur vous, Scribes & Pharisiens, Hypocrites.

The Scribes were properly those Men who expounded the Law, and made it intelligible to the People; therefore called Doctors of the Law, and Lawyers in S. Luke. In this not unlike the Canonists in the Church of Rome, or a Divinity-Reader in a Colledge. Their Original is referred to the Return of the Jews from their Babylonian Captivity; who had so far lost the Knowledge of their Mother-Tongue, that they were not able to understand the Words of the holy Scripture, when Ezra read it in their hearing. Insomuch that he was forced to imploy some learned in that Tongue, to expound it to them. And, though long before that

Time the Law had ordinarily been read unto them in the Feast of Tabernacles, yet it does not appear that any such Office as that of the Scribes was heard of till the Time of Ezra. Who, in process of Time, grew so considerable in the Jewish State, that it was hard to say at last, whether the Pharisees or They were the better Men. For what the Pharisees gained on the common People by pretence of Sanctity, these got more justifiably by their Zeal to the written Word, which they indeavoured to preserve from the common Dangers both of Corruption and Contempt. But, as they held close to the Pharisees, and concurred with 'em in most of their Superstitions, (as appears Matt. 23.) they may be lookt upon as a strong and potent Faction; against which, jointly with the Pharisees, our Saviour pronounced so many Woes. To be a good Scribe, to write well, écrire bien, être bon Ecrivain.

A Seeling, or Cieling, Lambris, Plafond.

Seeling, in the Sea-Phrase, is a sudden Agitation and violent Tumbling of a Ship, sometimes to one Side and sometimes to the other, as the Sea does forsake her. So that the Ship, being under Sail, is constrained to fall that way after it. And, when a Ship thus tumbles to the Leeward, it is called the Lee-feel; where in there is no Danger, though in a Storm, because the Sea will presently right her. Whereas, when she thus rolls to the Windward, 'tis to be feared she should come over too short and too suddenly. Inomuch that, by the breaking of the Sea right into her, she may either founder, or have some of her Upper Works quite carried away.

He is one of the Sergeants of our Company, il est un des Sergens de notre Compagnie.

Outre ces sortes de Sergens Militaires, il y a plusieurs Emplois publics en Angleterre, où l'on donne le Nom de Sergeant à ceux qui les occupent. Et ce qu'on appelle Sergeant at Law, autrement Sergeant of the Coys, repond à la Qualité de Docteur en Droit Civil.

A Sergeant at Law, or Sergeant of the Coys, is the highest Degree taken in that Profession, as that of a Doctor is in the Civil Law. To these, as Men best learned, and most experienced of all others, one Court is set apart to plead in by themselves, which is the Court of Common Pleas, where the Common Law of England is most strictly observed. And, though they have this Court to themselves, yet are they not restrained from Pleading in any other Courts; Where the Judges call them Brothers, and hear them with great respect, next to the King's Attorney and Solicitor General. They are made by the King's Mandate, or Writ, directed unto them; and commanding them, upon a great Penalty, to take upon them that Degree by a Day certain therein assigned. Of these one is the King's Sergeant, being chosen commonly out of the rest, in respect of his great Learning, to plead for him in all Causes, especially in those of Treason. And this is that which in other Kingdoms is called Advocatus Regius, in French l'Avocat du Roi. But, if the King please, there may be more than one. Lastly, this Degree of Sergeant at Law is the next Step to a Judge's Place; for none can have that Honour, till they have taken the Degree of Sergeant at Law.

The Bayliff of a Hundred, and Steward of a Mannor, are also called Servientes, or Sergeants, in the Law.

At Court there are Sergeants at Arms. Whose Office is to attend the Person of the King, to arrest Traytors, or Persons of Quality offending, and to attend the Lord High Steward of England sitting in Judgement upon any Traytor, and such like. Two of these, by the King's Allowance, attend on the two Houses of Parliament. And the Office of him in the House of Commons is the keeping of the Doors, and the Execution of such Commands, especially touching the Apprehension of any Offender, as that House shall injoyne him. Another of them attends on the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, in the Chancery; and one, on the Lord High Treasurer of England. One attends on the Lord President of Wales, and another upon the Lord President of the North. By a Statute made in the Reign of Richard II, there may not be above thirty of these Sergeants in the Realm. Another Sort of Sergeants are chief Officers, who execute several Functions in the King's Household.

There is also a more inferiour kind of Sergeants, called Sergeants of the Mace. Whereof there is a Troop in the City of London, and other Corporate Towns, that attend the Mayor, or other chief Officer, both for menial Attendance, and chiefly for Matter of Justice. These the Law calls Servientes ad Clavam. So that, upon the whole, 'tis plain, that the Word Sergeant comes from the Latine Serviens, with no great alteration.

My Sergeantship cannot keep me, ma Charge de Sergent ne sauroit m'entretenir.

During my Sergeantship, pendant que j'étois Sergent.

Sergeanty, Devoir de Vassal au Roi, cd. l'obéissance.

Sergeanty signifies in Law a Service that cannot be due to any Lord from his Tenant, but to the King only. And it is either Grand, or Petit Sergeanty. The first is, where one holds Land of the King by Service, which he ought to do in his own person. Petit Sergeanty is, where a Man holds Land of the King, to yield him yearly some small Thing towards his Wars.

 Sewel. So Hunters call any Thing hanged up to keep a Deer from entering into a Place.
 Sewer, un Ecuier tranchant; Canal (ou Conduit) fait exprès pour faire couler les Eaux, & les conduire à la Mer ou dans quelque Rivière.
 †This Word has two Significations; One applied to him that ushers or comes in before the Meat of a King, or other great Personage, and places it on the Table, &c. In which Sense it may be derived from the French Assoir, to set, or place; and accordingly an eminent Lawyer calls such an Officer in Latine by the name of Assessor, a Setter down.
 The other Signification of Sewer is applied to such Passages, or Gutters as carry Water into the Sea or a River. And in this Sense 'tis probably said for Issuer, from the French Issue an Issue, or going forth; because a Sewer gives Issue or Passage to the Water, &c. The Law-Latine Word for it is Suera or Severa.
 Now, for the well-keeping and maintaining of these Sewers, in marshy and fenny Countries, thereby to convey the Water into the Sea, and preserve Grasse upon the Land for the feeding of Cattel, there are Commissioners of Sewers usually granted under the Great Seal.

to Shale } to Shell.

Shaled } Shelled.

Shaling } Shelling.

Shall. C'est le Signe du premier Futur en Anglois.

Comme, I shall love, j'aimerai. I shall do it, je le ferai.

Au lieu de Shall, les Anglois se servent aussi de Will. Mais avec cette Difference, que Shall, dans les premieres Personnes, marque une Declaration; dans les secondes & troisièmes, un Commandement. Au lieu que Will marque par tout une Promesse, Intention, ou Resolution. C'est ce qu'il faut savoir bien distinguer, pour se servir comme il faut de l'un & de l'autre.

Il y a encore ceci à remarquer dans l'Usage de ce Mot. C'est que, pour éviter la Repetition du Verbe, les Anglois se servent souvent du Signe sans le Verbe.

Exemple, he will have me go thither, but I shall not, il veut que j'y aille, mais je n'y irai point.

Shall I, or no? le ferai je, ou non?

Shibboleth, Schibboleth.

This is an Hebrew Word, signifying an ear of Corn. A Word which cost dear to the Ephramites; when being routed by the Gileadites, under the Conduct of Jephthe the Judge of Israel, they indeavoured to escape over the River Jordan. The Passages whereof being secured by the victorious Army, the Ephramites had no other way to make their Escape, but by pretending themselves to be Gileadites. But the Cheat did not take. For, though they spoke the same Language, yet there was so much difference in the Pronunciation of some Words, that it proved fatal to the Ephramites. The Word Shibboleth was a Test put upon them. Which not being able to pronounce exactly after the manner of the Gileadites, they betray'd themselves to their Fury. Inomuch that forty two thousand of them lost their Lives at that time, as you have it related in the Book of Judges, the 12th. Chapter. Hence the Word is usually taken for a Word of Trial, to discern Citizens from Aliens, Friends from Foes.

A Sin of omission, Peché d'omission. A Sin of commission, Peché de commission.

A Sin unwillingly committed, un Peché de surprise.

To commit (or pepertrate) a Sin, commettre (faire) un Peché.

Sin at first is modest, and goes disguised with Saul to Endor, but after a while it grows impudent, and dares look bare-faced on the World, le Peché est modeste au commencement, il se disguise comme fit Saul allant à Hendore, mais dans la suite il leve le masque, & marche la tête levée.

Sin first persuades Men to civil Recreations, afterwards it bids them to unlawful Delights, au commencement le Peché nous porte à des Recreations honnêtes, en suite il nous engage aux Plaisirs illicites.

Sins, as they grow old, they grow lusty; and, if they once get a head, they know no Master, plus le Peché vieillit, plus il se fortifie; & des qu'il se sent assez fort il veut regner, & ne reconoit plus de Maître.

Sins grow like Grapes, close, but in clusters, les Peches croissent comme le Fruit de la Vigne, ils multiplient en grand Nombre, & se tiennent presque l'un à l'autre.

He that will prevent the Growth of Sin must resist the Beginning, pour prevenir la

Tyranny

Tyrannie du Peché, il n'y a qu'à lui résister dans les Commencemens.

He that goes about thoroughly to make riddance of his Sins shall find it a long Business; Sins are not, like Servants, to be gone at a Quarter's warning, Celui qui prétend de se défaire absolument de tous ses Peches entreprend une longue Tâche; ils ne veulent pas être congédiés, comme font nos Domestiques, en les avertissant trois mois par avance de se pourvoir.

How any Man should be dead while he is alive seems something strange, and yet there's nothing more true; for Sin is Death, and every obstinate Sinner is dead for the time, il est mal aisé de concevoir comment un Homme qui vit peut être mort, & cependant il n'est rien de plus vrai; le Peché est une Mort, & tout Pecheur obstiné est mort dans cet état.

As Sickness, so Sin does weaken by degrees; first it distempers the palate of the Soul, or spoils the Stomack, so that it distasts and refuses whatever is proper for it; next it takes away the Sense; and, when the Sense of Sin is gone from one, the Disease is past cure, and (as our Saviour told the Jews) the Sinner dies in Sin, le Peché est une Maladie qui affaiblit peu à peu; d'abord il donne à l'Âme du Dégout pour la Vertu; en suite il la jette dans un fatal Delire, & lui ôte la connoissance & le sentiment de son Mal; ainsi le Mal devient incurable, & (comme disoit notre Seigneur aux Juifs) le Pecheur meurt dans son Peché.

See Punishment.

A Sin-Offering, (as Lev. 7. 7.) une Offrande pour le Peché.

to Sin, pecher.

As, to sin against God, pecher contre Dieu. I have sinned against thee, j'ai peché contre toi.

To sin with Knowledge, to commit a known Sin, pecher avec connoissance. To sin ignorantly, pecher par ignorance, ou sans connoissance.

Some Men are afraid to sin, because they are afraid to smart for their Sin; and their Study is, not that they may not provoke God, but that they may run away from him, il y en a qui craignent de pecher, parce qu'ils appréhendent d'être punis; & qui se font une affaire, non de ne pas offenser Dieu, mais seulement d'éviter ses Jugemens.

Since, depuis, depuis que; puis que.

As, since his Death, depuis sa Mort. Since that Day we were together, depuis le Jour que nous fumes ensemble.

Since the Beginning of the World, depuis la Naissance du Monde.

'Tis a Company, says Blunt, of noble, ingenious, and learned Men, versed in the most usefull Parts of Knowledge, viz. Mathematical, Mechanical, Physiological, and Chymical. Incorporated by his Majesty King Charles II. his Charter, by which they bear the Name of the President, Council, and Fellows of the Royal Society of London, for Improving Natural Knowledge.

The Design of it is to increase Knowledge, and discover Truth in Natural, Mathematical, and Mechanical Things; to retrieve and help old Inventions, and encourage new; to set a Mark on Errors strengthened by long Prescription, and to restore Truths that have lain neglected; to advance those Truths that are already known to more various Uses, and so make the Way more passable to what remains yet undiscovered. Thus is laid a solid Foundation, to build a true System of Natural Philosophy upon. And, for the better Performance of it, they endeavour to ingage all industrious and sagacious Inquirers of Nature to conjoin their Researches and Labours, in order to the composing a faithful History of Nature and Art. Such an History as may contain a competent Stock of Experiments and Observations, frequently and carefully made by intelligent and wary Men, which may serve for a Magazin of Materials. Of which, in After-ages, a Body of Philosophy may be raised (by duly considering the Whole, and comparing all the Parts together) that may not only give a rational Account of the Effects of Nature; but also inable Men to infer, from confronted Causes and Effects, such Consequences as may conduce to the greater Benefit and ampler Accommodations of humane Life.

† Kentish-men are said to have Tails, and that Fiction took its Original from hence. S. Thomas of Canterbury, being in disfavour with Henry II, rode from the Court towards Canterbury upon a poor Jade. Whereupon some of the Mobile, the more to vilify him, cut off his Horse-tail. For which the Successors of those People are said to have had Tails, as a

The Tail of a Comet, Queue de Comete.

If you will know what Gender a Comet is of, do but look under the Tail, si vous voulez savoir de quel Genre est ce qu'on appelle Comete, vous n'avez qu'à lui regarder sous la Queue.

The Dragon's Tail, in Astronomy, Queue de Dragon, en Termes d'Astronomie.

The Plough-tail, le Manche de la Charrue.

† Tail, in the Sense of the Law, signifies two several Things; viz. a Tally, and the Fee which is opposite to Fee-simple.

Of the first there are two Sorts mentioned in the Statutes, and which have been long used in the Exchequer; the one termed Tails of Debt, and the other Tails of Reward.

The first are a kind of Acquittance for Debt paid to the King. As for Example, the University of Cambridge pays yearly Ten Pounds, for such Things as are by their Charter granted them in Fee-farm, viz. five Pounds at the Annunciation, and five Pounds at Michaelmas. He that pays these Sums receives for his Discharge a Tail (or Tally) at each Day; with both which, or Notes of them, he repairs to the Clerk of the Pipe Office; and there, instead of them, receives an Acquittance in parchment for his full Discharge.

The Tails of Reward seem to be Tallies of Allowance or Recompence, made to the Sheriffs, for such Matters as to their Charge they have performed in their Office, or for such Monies as they by course have cast upon them in their Accounts, but cannot levy.

The Fee called Tail, in opposition to Fee-simple, has took that Name from the Use of a Tally, being a cloven piece of Wood, to set up an Account upon by Notches. And that, because this Fee is so minced, and parted as it were, that it is not in the Owner's free power to dispose; but is by the first Giver cut or divided from all others, and tied to the Issue of the Donee.

Now this Limitation of Tail is either general, or special. Tail general is that whereby Lands or Tenements are limited to a Man, and to the Heirs of his Body begotten. And 'tis so called, how many Wives soever the Tenant holding by this Title shall have one after another, in lawfull Marriage; his Issue by them all have a possibility to inherit one after another.

Tail special is, when Lands or Tenements are limited to a Man and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten. Called Special, because, if the Man bury his Wife before Issue, and take another, the Issue by his second Wife cannot inherit the Land, &c. Also, if Land be given to a Man and his Wife, and to their Son N— for ever, this is Tail special.

There is also a Tail after possibility of Issue extinct. And that is, where Land is given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies ingendred; and one of them out-lives the other, without Issue between them begotten. In which Case he shall hold the Land for term of his own Life, as Tenant in the Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct; and, if he do waite, he shall never be impeached of it.

The Word Tail is also used sometimes in a burlesk Sense for the privy Member; but chiefly for a Womans secret Parts.

As, she gets a Livelyhood with her Tail, elle fait le Metier de Putain, elle gagne sa Vie en remuant les Fesses.

Or thus. As, squat upon the tail, accroupi, courbé sur le Cul, qui se repose sur le Derriere.

† The Story of Tantalus, which has given birth to this pat Expression, is so well known, that perhaps it might be well spared. However, for the Satisfaction of such as are not versed in Poetical Fictions, I thought fit to insert it, that they may know the Ground and proper Meaning of this Word.

Tantalus was the Son of Jupiter, and Plota the Nymph. Who on a time intertaining the Gods to make trial of their Divinity, killed, dressed, and served up his Son Pelops at the Feast. Which Fact the Gods forsooth descried, and so abhorred, that, for the loathsome Banquet he made them, they made him one as distastfull. For he was fet in Water up to the Chin, and Apples bobbed him on the Lips; yet had he no power to stoop to the one to quench his Thirst, nor to reach up to the other to satisfy his hungry Appetite.

Others say, he was thus punished for blabbing of Secrets. Agreeable to which Opinion is the following Pentameter, Tantalus in mediâ garrulus aret Aquâ.

In English, thus.

Prating Tantalus is ready to sink,
And yet the poor Man wanteth Drink.

Hence to Tantalize one is to put him in the Condition of Tantalus, that is, to make him fond of and eager for a Thing, and yet not to permit him to enjoy it.

Tantalized, bravé, affronté, à qui l'on a fait naître l'envie d'une Chose pour en suite se moquer de lui.

Templar, a Knight Templar, Templier, sorte de Chevalier Religieux.

Templars were certain Religious Christian Souldiers, Instituted by Pope Gelasius II. about the Year 1119, and which continued about 200. Years, till they were suppressed by Pope Clement the fifth.

To what has been already said of this Order, under the Word Knight, I shall add, that they were called Templars from the Temple of Jerusalem, about which they dwelt, and which (by their Office and Vow) they were bound to defend, together with the holy Sepulchre.

Their Habit was a white Cloak, or upper Garment, with a red Cross, and a Sword about them. The Cross was red, in token that they should shed their Blood, to defend Christ's Temple. And, because they wore it on their Backs, they were by the common People called Cross-backs, or Crouch-backs, and by corruption Crook-backs. Accordingly Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, second Son to Henry III, being of this Order, was vulgarly called Edmund Crook-back.

These Knights had in all Provinces of Europe their subordinate Governours, in which they possessed no less than 16000. Lordships. The House of Law-Students in London, called the Temple, was the chief House of the Knights of this Order in England; and was by the Knights of S. John, whose principal Mansion was in Smithfield, sold unto the Students of the Law, for the yearly Rent of ten Pound, about the middle of the Reign of Edward the Third.

The Crimes objected against this Order, and for which it was suppressed by the foresaid Clement the fifth, were 1. Their Revolt from their professed Obedience unto the Patriarch of Jerusalem, who was their Visitor. 2. Their unspeakable Pride. 3. Their Sins against Nature. But some think, that the Greatness of their Revenue was not the least Cause of dissolving the Order.

After whose Suppression, their Lands were (by a general Council held at Vienne) conferred on the other more ancient and religious Knights of the Order of S. John of Jerusalem, afterwards called Knights of Rhodes, and lastly Knights of Malta, where they live at this day. Wherein Philip the Fair, King of France, was grievously disappointed. Who had a plot to invest one of his Sons with the Title of King of Jerusalem; hoping to procure of the Pope the Revenue of this Order to be laid unto that Kingdom, for Support of the Title. Which he thought he might the better do, because Clement then Pope, for the love he bare to France his native Country, had transferred his Seat from Rome to Avignon.

This Canon of the Council, whereby the Knights of S. John of Jerusalem were Invested with the Revenues of the Templars, was confirmed to those that resided here in England, by Act of Parliament made 17. Edw. 2.

The Temple, or Templars Inn in Fleetstreet, le Temple. C'est ainsi qu'on appelle un fameux College de Droit à Londres, & le plus ancien de tous.

The Temple, as I have already hinted under the Word Templar, was the chief House of the Knights Templars in England. Which Order being suppressed, it came in the possession of the Knights of S. John of Jerusalem, whose principal Mansion was the Priory of S. John, near Smithfield. And, after several noble Persons had been Tenants and Occupants of the Temple-Inns, certain of the Reverend ancient Professors of the Laws obtained from the said Knights a very large or perpetual Lease of this Temple, to pay yearly ten Pound.

First of all it was divided into three several Houses, that is the Inner, the Middle, and the Outward Temple, which last was afterwards Essex House. But they were at first but one House; in which the Knights Templars lived in great honour and opulency about 100. Years. Their Church, yet standing, was dedicated to the Service of God by Heraclius Patriarch of Jerusalem in the Year of our Lord 1185.

And, whereas the Knights Templars bore for their Arms a Shield Argent, charged with a Cross Gules, and upon the Nombri of it a holy Lamb; the Society of the Inner Temple have taken for their Ensign or Devise a Pegasus, or flying Horse, Argent, in a Field Azure.

Tenebrae, Tenebres, Office qui se dit dans l'Eglise Romaine sur les quatre ou cinq heures du Soir le Mercredi, le Jeudi, & le Vendredi saints.

'Tis a Service used in the Roman Church on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday before Easter; therefore called Tenebrae Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

The Word is a Latine Word, that signifies Darknes. And the Reason why those Days are so called is; because the Service for that Time begins with many Lights, and ends in Darknes; to represent the Night-time of our blessed Saviour's Apprehension, in the Place called Gethsemane.

The Manner is thus. Fifteen Candles, which is as many as there are Psalms and Canticles in the Office, are lighted at first on a triangular Candlestick. And, at the end of every Psalm, one of the fifteen Lights is extinguished, till they are all put out. By which means the Congregation is left in utter Darknes.

Thus that Church has thought fit to represent the forsaken desolate State of our blessed Saviour near the Time of his Passion, all the Light or Comfort of his Friends leaving him, or being forced from him for a Time, and He left alone sub potestate Tenebrarum, under the power of Darknes.

Tenebrous, or dark, tenebreux, obscur, ou plein de tenebres.

As, to make his Testament, faire son Testament, tester.

There are two Sorts of Testament, One in Writing, and Another in Words. The last, otherwise called a Nuncupative Testament, is, when a Man, being sick, and fearing lest Death, or want of Memory or Speech, should come so suddenly upon him, that he should prevented, if he said the Writing of his Testament, desires his Neighbours and Friends to bear Witness of his last Will, and then declares the same before them by Words. Which, after his Decease, being proved by Witnesses, and put in Writing by the Ordinary, stands in as good force as if it had at the first in the Life of the Testator been put in Writing. Except only for Lands, which are devisable but by a Testament put in writing in the Life of the Testator.

The Old and New Testament, into which the Bible is divided, le Vieux & le Nouveau Testament, qui composent la Bible.

Texture, or Weaving, Tissure.

T H

Le Son du th Anglois est le plus grand Ecueil des François, & de tous les Sons particuliers à la Langue Angloise celui qui leur fait plus de peine.

Il se prononce de deux différentes manieres, l'une qui represente un d aspiré, & l'autre un t aspiré; l'une & l'autre, en appuyant plus ou moins la Langue contre les Dents. C'est ce que la Plume ne sauroit bien exprimer. Ce sont des Sons qui ne s'apprennent proprement que par l'Oreille.

Il est vrai que le premier n'est pas fort éloigné de la Prononciation du d, & ce n'est proprement qu'un d légèrement sifflé contre les dents. Comme en ces Mots the, this, that, these, they, thy, thine, thou, thee, them, than, then, thence, there, though, although, thus, farthing, &c.

Ajoutons y ceux qui finissent en ther; comme lather, father, gather, feather, leather, weather, mother, brother, other, either, hither, thither, whither, lither, further.

Pour ce qui est de murder and burthen, l'Usage moderne a réduit le th en d. Si bien qu'aujourd'hui on les écrit communément murder, burden.

Le th qui se prononce en t aspiré se trouve 1. dans tous les autres Mots qui commencent par th; comme thanks, thaw, thief, thorough, thread, throw, thumb, thunder, think, &c.

[Il en faut pourtant excepter ces deux, Thames and Thyme, où th se prononce à la Française, comme un simple t.]

2. Dans ces Mots, bath, blithe, birth, breath, broth, cloth, loth, moth, both, troth, betroth, Cathedral, breath, death, health, wealth, depth, height, length, strength, oath, faith, tooth, forsooth, growth, youth, mouth, truth, with, &c. quelques autres, avec leurs Derivatis.

3. à la Personne Sing. du Temps Present de l'Indicatif; comme he doth, he faith, he telleth, he drinketh.

Il est vrai qu'ici le th se change souvent en s, ou es, & se prononce en s. Exemple he do's ou he does, he eats, he drinks.

It is never the better, il n'en est pas meilleur. He is never the worse for that, il n'en est pas pire pour cela.

Now this Article differs in these five respects from the Article A, or an.

First, A and an are proper Notes of the Singular Number, but The is common to both Numbers.

As, the stone la pierre, the stones les pierres.

Secondly, A and an are of a general Import, but The has a restraining power.

As a Church une Eglise, the Church l'Eglise, a King un Roi, the King le Roi.

Thirdly, the Adjective that hath A or an before it must have its Substantive expressed after it, but after The it is often left out and only understood.

As, a godly man un homme pieux, the Godly les hommes pieux, les fidèles.

Fourthly, A and an are not used before Adverbs of the Comparative Degree, but only before Adjectives; whereas The is used before both.

As, the brighter, the better, plus il est brillant, plus il est estimé.

He did the easier persuade them to it, il les y persuada d'autant plus facilement.

Fifthly, Where the Superlative Degree is used in the height of excess, there The, not A, is used before it; but, where it is used in a moderate sense, there A, not The, is used before it.

As, this Boy, ce Garçon. This Child, cet Enfant. This Woman, cette Femme.

This is to break Friendship, c'est rompre l'Amitié.

This I am for, celui ci me plaît. Give me this, donnez moi celle ci.

What does this mean? que veut dire ceci?

Remarquez ici, que this se dit pour this Thing, comme nous disons Ceci, pour dire cette Chose ci.

Or thus. As, this is the Man I look for, voici (ou c'est ici) l'Homme que je cherche.

By this place, or this way, par ici, par cet endroit.

From this place, d'ici. To this place, ici, jusqu'ici.

Thistle, Chardon.

Fuller's Thistle, Chardon à carder.

The Order of the Thistle, l'Ordre du Chardon, ou l'Ordre de S. André.

This

✠ This Order was Instituted about the Year of our Lord 809. by Achatus King of Scotland, upon the Victory obtained by him against Athelstane King of the Saxons. The Solemnities whereof were performed in S. Andrew's Church, as being the Place where the pretended Reliques of that Apostle were kept, whither the said King Achatus went in solemn Procession. This Order, being eclipsed ever since the tragical Death of Queen Mary of Scotland, his present Majesty was lately pleased to revive and restore to its former Lustre. It consists of the Sovereign, and Twelve Knights Brethren, in Allusion to our Saviour, and the Twelve Apostles.

Thistle-down, coron de Chardon.

Thither, là y.

As, go thither immediately, allez vous en vite là, allez vous y en vite, allez y au plus tôt.

I have a mind to go thither again, j'ai envie d'y retourner.

Remarquez ici, qu'on se sert de thither, au lieu de there; après un Verbe qui signifie un Mouvement local, comme dans les Exemples que je vien d'avancer. C'est par la même Raison, qu'on se sert aussi de hither, au lieu de here, quand il y a Mouvement. Et cela à l'imitation du Latin.

Or thus. As, hither and thither, ici & là.

We are but half Way thither, nous ne sommes qu'à moitié Chemin.

Thitherto, or to that Place, jusques là.

Thitherwards, vers ce Lieu là.

Tho. See Though.

Thokes, Fish with broken Bellies, Poisson éventré.

By a Statute made in the Reign of Edward IV. Thokes are not to be mixt or packt with Tale-fish.

As, a thong of leather, courroie (ou bande) de cuir.

Thonged, or tied with thongs, lié avec des courroies.

Thor, sorte d'Idole en grande Veneration parmi les anciens Saxons.

✠ Thor was an Idol of great esteem among the old Saxons and Teutonicks. The Day called Thursday, and by the Danes and Swedes Thor's-day, was dedicated to his peculiar Service, and thence took Denomination. This Idol was also called the God of Thunder, and accordingly the Netherlands call Thursday Dundersdag, which is Thunders-Day.

Thorn, Epine, (dans le Sens propre & le figuré.)

Roses are found amongst Thorns, les Roses se trouvent parmi des Epines.

Thou, tu.

As, thou lovest me, tu m'aimes.

Thou art an honest Man, tu es un honnête Homme.

Vous pouvez ici remarquer, qu'en Angleterre, comme en France, quand on parle à une Personne, on se sert ordinairement du Pluriel You, cd. Vous; & qu'on n'y traite les gens qu'avec Mepris, ou bien par Familiarité. Il n'y a que les Trembleurs, qui se sont rendus singuliers par leur Maniere de Tutayer; & comme si c'étoit un Article de Foi, ils n'en exceptent pas même leur Souverain.

Il est vrai que, quand on parle à Dieu, les Protestans, ici comme ailleurs, se servent du Singulier, par rapport à son Unité.

to Thou, tutayer.

As, the Quakers thou every body, the King as well as the meanest Cobler, les Trembleurs tutaient tout le Monde, le Roi aussi bien que le plus chetif Savetier.

Though, quoi que, bien que, quand mêmes.

And, with The after it, thus. As, he is gone to the College, il est allé au College; to the University, à l'Université; to the Mines, aux Mines.

[Remarquez, qu'ici l'Anglois imite le Latin, en se servant de to, au lieu de at, après un Verbe qui signifie Mouvement local. Ainsi, par exemple, il faut dire, I am at Paris, je suis à Paris, parce que le Verbe Etre n'exprime point de Mouvement. Au lieu qu'après le Verbe to Go, & ses semblables, on se sert de to. Il faut donc dire, I go to Paris, je m'en vais à Paris.]

He is gone to France, il est allé en France; to Spain, en Espagne; to Portugal, en Portugal.

To commend one to his face, loier quelqu'un en sa presence.

To burn to ashes, reduire en cendres.

To and again, one way and the other way, de côté & d'autre. He went to and again, il alloit & il revenoit.

To the end that, afin que.

Lastly, To, before a Verb, is (as in the Greek Tongue) a Sign of the Infinitive Mood.

As, to love aimer, to teach enseigner.

But, between two Verbs, the French do commonly make use of one of these three Prepositions, answerable to To; viz. de, à, pour.

As, are you then resolved to go away? êtes vous donc résolu de vous en aller?

He loves to travel, il aime (ou il se plaît) à voyager.

He is appointed to go Embassadour thither, il est nommé pour aller là en qualité d'Ambassadeur.

Now, that you may know which of these three Prepositions properly to use, you will find Rules to that purpose in my Grammatical Discourse, under the Infinitive Mood of the Verbs that stand there for a Model of the four Conjugations.

Tory. C'est un Sobriquet que les Enemis du Parti de la Cour sur la fin du dernier Regne donnoient à tous ceux qui se rangeoient de ce Parti là, soit Protestans, ou Catholiques Romains. Chacun sait, que dans ce Temps là les Esprits étoient furieusement partagez en Angleterre; & l'on peut dire qu'alors tout ce Royaume étoit presque divisé en deux Partis, qui se distinguoient par les Noms odieux de Tory & de Whig.

Tory est un Nom d'Origine infame, tiré des Marais d'Irlande, & qui n'appartient proprement qu'aux grands Voleurs de ce Pais là, qui sont comme les Bandits en Italie. Le Nom de Whig vient d'Ecosse, & signifie un sombre Visionnaire, un Fanatique ouvé, un Entoufflé, un Enemi du Gouvernement.

Les Gens de Cour, & generalement tous les vrais Membres de l'Eglise Anglicane, aussi bien que les Papistes, qui soutenoient avec eux les Droits de la Couronne & de la Succession, passoient tous sous le Nom de Tory. Les Non-conformistes, qui s'opposoient d'autre côté à la Succession du Roi d'apresent, & qui pretendoient l'exclure de la Couronne, étoient distinguez des autres par celui de Whig.

C'est ainsi que dans les Guerres Civiles sous le Regne de Charles I. on étoit partagé en Cavaliers & Roundheads. Conformés en cela à la Conduite des Florentins d'autrefois, qui pendant leurs Troubles se distinguoient en Negri & Bianchi; & à celle des Guelphes & des Gibelins, dont ceux là tenoient le Parti du Pape, ceux ci celui de l'Empereur.

Presentement les Noms de Tory & de Whig sont hors d'Usage, depuis l'Avenement du Roi à la Couronne; & toute la Division dont on entend parler maintenant est celle de Protestans & de Catholiques Romains. Une Division fort inegale à l'égard du Nombre, si l'on considere que, pour un Catholique Romain qu'il y a en Angleterre, on conte deux cents Protestans.

As, Sophocles his Tragedies, les Tragedies de Sophocles.

To act a Tragedy, jouer une Tragedie.

The English are best at Tragedies, and the French at Comedies, les Anglois réussissent le mieux dans la Tragedie, & les François dans la Comedie.

The Word Tragedy is of Greek Origin; for it comes from Tragodia a Compound of Tragos a Goat, and Odé an Ode or Song. And a Tragedy came to be so called, because the Actors thereof had a Goat given them as a Reward.

Now the Difference between a Tragedy and a Comedy are these. The first treats of sad Matters, such as Exilements, Murders, &c; a Comedy, of Love-toys, and merry Fictions. The Subject of a Tragedy is commonly true, and once really performed; and that of a Comedy is often feigned. The Beginning of a Tragedy is calm and quiet, the End fearfull and turbulent; whereas in a Comedy the Beginning is turbulent, and the Conclusion calm. In a Tragedy the greatest part of the Actors are Kings and noble Persons; in a Comedy, private Persons of meaner state and condition.

In this both Tragedies and Comedies agree, that they ought to have five Acts, and no more; according to that of Horace.

Neve minor quinto, neu sit productior Actus, Fabula.

These Acts are divided into several Scenes, which sometimes fall out more, sometimes fewer in every Act. In which Scenes the Actors are shifted, the Definition of a Scene being Mutatio Personarum.

The Word Tragedy is also used, in both Languages, figuratively.

As, Fortune acts Tragedies through all Parts of Europe, la Fortune joue des Tragedies par tous les Endroits de l'Europe.

Tragical, or Tragick, tragique, élevé, sublime, qui sent la Tragedie; tragique, fatal; Tragique, qui fait des Tragedies.

As, a Treader of Grapes, un Fouleur de Vendange.

Treading, l'action de marcher, fouler, ou co-cher.

Treadle, Marches.

As, the Treadle of a Weaver's Loom, les Marches d'un Tisserand. On appelle ainsi les Morceaux de bois qu'il touche avec le Pié quand il fait de la Toile, & qui font aller les Lames.

Treadles (or Tredles) of Sheep, Excremens de Moutons ou Brebis.

Treason, Trahison.

High Treason, or Treason Paramount, haute Trahison, (or rather) leze Majesté.

To be guilty of high Treason, être coupable de Leze Majesté.

† Treason is divided into High, and Petty Treason. The first is an Offence committed against the Security of the Kingdom, whether it be by Imagination,

Word, or Deed. As, to compass or imagine the Death of the King, Queen, or

Prince; to levy War against the King in his Realm, and adhere to his Enemies; to deflower the King's Wife, or his eldest Daughter unmarried, or his eldest Son's

Wife. 'Tis also high Treason to counterfeit his Great Seal, Privy Seal, or Mony; wittingly to bring hither false and counter-feited Mony, like the Mony of England, and utter the same; to diminish or impair current Mony, or to forge any foreign Coin current here. To kill the King's

Chancellor, Treasurer, Justices of either Bench, Justices in Eyre, of Assize, or of Oyer and Terminer, being in their Place doing their Office, is likewise high Treason. And so it was in the late Reign to say, that the King was an Heretick, or

Papist, or that he intended to introduce Popery, &c. The Punishment for high

Treason is for the Offender to be drawn, hanged, and quartered, and forfeit his

Lands and Goods to the King.

Petty Treason is when a Servant kills his Master, a Wife her Husband, or when a Secular or Religious Man kills his Prelate or Superiour, to whom he owes Faith and Obedience. This kind of Treason gives Forfeiture of Escheats to every Lord within his own Fee.

† A Treason-monger, one that deals in treasonable Practices, un Traître.

Treasonable, de Traître.

As, treasonable Actions, des Actions de tre.

To act treasonably, agir en Traître, faire des Actions de Traître.

† Treasonous. See Treasonable.

Treasure, Tresor, Richesses; Tresor, chose belle, rare, & précieuse.

As, to heap up Treasures, amasser des Tresors.

The Governour of Damascus delivered into the hands of Parmenio Darius his Treasure, le Gouverneur de Damas livra à Parmenion le Tresor de Darius.

The King's Treasure, le Tresor du Roi.

The King's Treasure is the Sinews of War,
le Tresor du Roi est le Nœuf de la Guerre.

To find a Treasure, trouver un Tresor.

† 'Tis every Subjects Part, as soon as he has found any Treasure in the Earth, having no Owner, to make it known to the Coroners of that County. For, though the Civil Law give such a Treasure to the Finder, according to the Law of Nature;

yet the Law of England gives it to the King by his Prerogative, or to some other who claims by the King's Grant, or by Prescription. But, if the Owner may any ways be known, then it does not belong to the King's Prerogative. The Punishment for Concealing Treasure found is Imprisonment and Fine.

In case of Mine, it is observable, that, if any Mine of base Metal be found in any Ground, it belongs to the Lord of the Soil. But, if it be Gold, or Silver, it ap-pertains to the King, in whose Ground soever they be found.

There blew no Wind but what brought Treasures into our Land, il ne souffloit point de Vent qui n'apportât des Tresors dans nos Terres.

Where your Treasure is, there will your Heart be also, (Luke 12. 34.) là où est votre Tresor, là aussi sera votre Cœur.

Nature exhausted her Treasures, when she framed your Body, la Nature epuisa ses Tresors, quand elle forma votre Corps.

Her divine Soul in a fair Body is a double Treasure, sa divine Ame & son beau Corps sont un Mélange de Tresors.

A faithfull Servant is a Treasure to one, c'est un Tresor qu'un Serviteur fidelle.

Treasure-house, Tresor, la Chambre du Tresor.

to Treasure up, to hord up Riches, thesauriser, amasser des Tresors, ou des Riches-ses.

Treasured up, thesaurisé, amassé.

Treasurer, Tresorier.

The Lord Treasurer of England, le Grand Tresorier d'Angleterre.

The Treasurer's Lady, *la Tresoriere, ou
Femme du Tresorier.*

† Treasurer is an Officer to whom the Treasure of another is committed to be kept, and truly disposed of. There is Mention made of several Sorts of Treasurers; as the Treasurer of the Exchequer,

Treasurer of the Navy or War, Treasurer of the King's Chamber, Treasurer of the Wars, Treasurer of the King's Wardrobe,

Treasurer of the County for poor Soul-diers. And most Corporations through the Kingdom have an Officer of this Name, that receives their Rents, and disburses

their common Expences, being of great Credit among them.

But the chief Treasurer of all is the Treasurer of England, who is a Lord

by his Office, and one of the greatest Men of the Land. Under whose Charge and Government is all the Prince's Wealth contained in the Exchequer; as also the Clerk of all Officers any way imploy'd in the Collecting the Imposts, Tributes, or other Revenues belonging to the Crown. By Virtue of his Office, he has the Nomination of all Escheators yearly throughout England, and gives the Places of all Customs and Searchers in all the Ports of the Realm, with divers other Matters.

There is also the Treasure of the King's Houshold, who is of the Privy Council.

In the absence of the Steward of the King's Houshold, he hath power with the Comptroller and Steward of the Marshal-lea, without Commission, to hear and determine Treasons, Misdemeanors of Treason, Murder, Homicide, and Bloudshed committed within the King's Pallace.

Trepoly. See Tripoly.

Trespas, Offense, Peché, Transgression, Délit.

As, forgive us our Trespases, pardonne nous nos Offenses.

† A Trespas in the Law-Sense, signifies in general any Transgression under Treason, Felony, or Misdemeanor of either.

Thus for a Lord of the Parliament to depart from the Parliament, without the King's Licence, is neither Treason, nor Felony, but Trespas. But it is most commonly used for that Wrong or Damage which is done either to the King in his Forest, or by one private Man to another.

And in this Signification it is of two Sorts, General, and Special. The first is otherwise called Trespas Vi & Armis, and the other Trespas upon the Case, which seems to be without force. But sometimes they are confounded. In an Action of Trespas, the Plaintiff always sues for Damages, or the Value of the Hurt done him by the Defendant.

There is also Trespas Local, and Transitory. The first is that which is so annexed to a Place certain, that, if the Defendant joyn Issue upon the Place, and traverse the Place, by making out that he did not trespas in the Place mentioned in the Declaration, it is enough to defeat the Action. Whereas Trespas transitory is that which cannot be defeated by the Defendants Traverse of the Place, because the Place is not material.

Trespas-Offering, l'offrande pour le Délit, l'offrande de Délit; le Délit, Lev. 5. 9.

to Trespas against, or offend, offenser, choquer, s'opposer.

To trespas against one, offenser quelqu'un.

Forgive us our Trespases as we forgive them that trespas against us, pardonne nous nos Offenses comme nous pardonnons à ceux qui nous ont offensés.

You trespas herein against the Authority of the Schools, vous vous opposez en ceci à l'Autorité de l'Ecole.

Or thus. As, to trespas upon a Law, violer une Loi, la transgresser (en Termes de Religion.)

I shall trespas upon ye, or upon your Patience, je crain d'abuser de votre Patience.

Tribunal, or Judgement-Seat, Tribunal, le Siège d'un Juge dans sa Jurisdiction.

To reprove the Justice of a Tribunal, censurer la Justice d'un Tribunal.

Tribune, (from Tribe) Tribun, sorte de Magistrat parmi les anciens Romains.

† Tribune Plebis, the Tribune of the People, was properly a Protector of the Commons, being to defend their Liberties against the Power of the Nobles. At the first Institution of them, they were in Number but two, or (as some will have it) five, but at last they increased unto ten. They had not at first Authority to enact any new Decrees, as afterward by abusing their Authority they did. Only they had Power to hinder any Proceedings in the Senate, which they thought might prove prejudicial unto the Commons. Nor were they then permitted to come into the Senate, but they sat without at the Door; and whatsoever was determined within the Senate was sent unto them, to be perused. And, if they did approve it, then did they subscribe a great Roman T, being the first Letter of the Word Tribuni. Their Houses stood open Night and Day, as a common Refuge or Place of Succour for all that would come; Neither was it lawfull for them to be absent out of the Town one whole Day throughout the Year.

But, besides these Tribunes, the Romans had their Military Tribunes, of two Sorts. The One had all Power and Authority which belonged unto the Consul, and thence were called Tribuni Militum Consulari Potestate. The Other had Power only in Matters Military, therefore called Tribuni Militum, without any Addition. Only those were surnamed Rutuli or Rufuli, that were chosen by the Consuls; because they had their Authority confirmed unto them by virtue of an Act or Law preferred by Rutilius Rufus, when he was Consul. Others Suffecti, that were elected by the Souldiers themselves in their Camp, when their former Tribunes were taken from them by some violent or unnatural Death. And those Comitati, that were chosen by the Roman Assemblies called in Latine Comititia. To every Thousand of Foot in any Legion there was a Military Tribune, who (like our Knights Martial) was to see the Souldiers faulty to be punished.

Both the Consular and Military Tribunes came to be so called, because at the first Institution of them there were but three of each. But in process of Time their Number did increase.

The Office of a Roman Tribune, Tribunat, Charge ou Office de Tribun.

Tributary, that pays Tribute, Tributaire, qui paie Tribut.

Trim, (Subst.) Assiete, ou Estive, le juste Contrepoids qu'on donne à chaque Côté du Vaisseau pour faciliter son Cours.

As, the Trim of a Ship, that Posture (or Ballasting) of her which most fitly conduceth to her good Sailing, l'Assiete d'un Navire, ou son Estive.

Most commonly by the Trim of a Ship is understood the Swimming of her, either with her Head deep in the Water, or her Stern deep, or upon an even Keel, that is upright. Now in which of these Postures a Ship sails best, that is called her Trim. But this is not accounted her Trim alone. For some Ships are found to sail well or ill after the manner of the staying of the Masts, and the slackness of her Shrouds, and the like. And therefore, to speak properly, the true Trim of a Ship is what I said at first.

to Trim, garnir; raser, faire la barbe; balancer, donner un juste Contrepoids.

Trimly, or neatly, proprement.

Trimmed (from the Verb to Trim) garni, &c. according to the Verb.

A Boat well trimmed, Bateau qui est en bonne Assiete, qui a son juste Contrepoids.

Trimmer, Celui qui tenoit un Milieu entre un Tory & un Whig, qui se ménageoit entre les deux Partis, & qui n'entrois dans l'un ni dans l'autre. Voyez Tory.

Pour l'Origine du Mot Trimmer, il est assez visible qu'il vient du Verbe to Trim, dans sa troisième Signification; puis que les Trimmers se consideroient comme ceux qui contrebaloient l'un & l'autre Parti.

Trimming, l'action de garnir, &c. as in the Verb to Trim.

The Trimming of a Suit, la Garniture d'un Habit.

Trinitarian, a sort of Heretick, Trinitaire, Heretique qui a des Erreurs sur le Mystere de la Trinité.

The Trinitarian Hereticks are a Sort of New Arrians, that deny the Blessed Trinity, and all Distinction of the Divine Persons. They inveigh against the Word Trinity, and (as Lindanus testifies) blasphemously term that most sacred Mystery Infernalem Cerberum. But, instead of Trinitarians, methinks they should be rather called Anti-Trinitarians.

Trinity, la Trinité.

The blessed and glorious Trinity, la sainte & adorable Trinité.

Trinity is a Distinction of Three Persons in the Unity of the Godhead, God being one and the self-same in essence, and for Subsistence Three, viz. Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. And these three are one, 1 John 5. 7. Now that Three should remain Three, and yet be One, and One abiding One be Three, and all this at once, is a Mystery rather to be religiously adored, than curiously sought into; requiring rather Faith to believe, than Reason to comprehend it.

Trinity, or Hearts ease, a sort of Herb, Flammule, sorte d'Herbe.

Trinity-Sunday, the first Sunday after Whit Sunday, le Dimanche de la Trinité, le Dimanche qui suit immédiatement Celui de la Pentecôte.

Trinity-House, the Trinity-House of Deptford Strond. 'Tis a House which belongs to a Company or Corporation of Seamen, that have Power (by the King's Charter) to take Knowledge of those that destroy Sea-Marks, and to redress their Doings; as also to correct the Faults of Saylers, &c. and to take care of divers other Things belonging to Navigation and the Sea. The said Company consists of a Master, Wardens, and Assistants.

They seized upon the Priests, and all their Priestly Ornaments under the Name of Popish Trinkets, ils saisissoient les Prêtres, & tous leurs Ornaments Sacerdotaux, qu'ils appeloient les Babioles (ou l'Attirail) du Pape.

Trinkling. As, to go trinkling up and down, aller aux ecoutes.

Trip, un faux pas.

A Trip (or Herd) of Goats, un Troupeau de Chevres.

to Trip, glisser, faire un faux pas; fourcher.

I tript, and was very like to fall, mon Pied glissa, & je fus sur le point de tomber.

He trips with his Tongue, sa Langue fourche, il dit un Mot pour un autre.

Or thus. As, to trip along, to go quick but short steps, aller vite.

To trip one up, or to trip up his heels, faire tomber quelqu'un; also supplanter quelqu'un, lui couper l'Herbe sous les pieds.

Tripartite, or divided into three Parts, divisé en trois Parties.

Tripe, Tripe.

A Dish of good Tripes, un Plat de bonnes Tripes.

To love Tripes, aimer les Tripes.

A Tripe-house, the Place where the Tripe-Women fetch Tripes to sell them in the Market, Triperie, le Lieu où l'on distribue les Tripes aux Tripières.

A Tripe-woman, une Tripière, ou Femme qui vend des Tripes.

Tripery, or Tripe-Market, Triperie, ou Marché aux Tripes.

Triple, or three-fold, triple, qui est composé de trois.

As, the Pope's triple Crown, la triple Couronne (la Tiare) du Pape.

We made a triple Discharge, nous fimes une triple Decharge.

The triple League, la triple Alliance.

The Triple-tree, or Gallows, le Gibet, la Potence.

'Twas a kind of three-footed Table in the Temple of Apollo, upon which stood the Priestesses of that God, to prophesy.

Tripped. See Tript.

Tripping, (from the Verb to Trip) l'action de glisser, ou de faire un faux pas.

Or thus. As, to take one tripping, attraper quelqu'un, le surprendre, avoir quelque prise sur lui.

He lay at catch with him to take him tripping whereever he could, il le veilloit pour l'attraper dans quelque Contradiction.

Tripoly, a Stone with the Powder whereof Lapidaries and Stone-cutters smooth and polish their Work, Tripoli.

Tript. C'est un Preterit du Verbe to Trip.

Trite, or common, commun.

As, a trite Saying, un Dire commun.

A trite Argument, un Argument commun.

Trithing. 'Tis an old Word signifying the third Part of a Country. Also a Court held within that Circuit, the same we now call a Court-Leet, inferior to the County-Court, and above a Court-Baron.

Triton, Neptune's Trumpeter, Triton, sorte de Dieu marin qui est le Trompette de Neptune.

Trivet. See Trevet.

Trivial, common, or ordinary, trivial, commun, ordinaire.

There's nothing more trivial, il n'y a rien de plus trivial que cela.

A very trivial Notion, une Pensée fort triviale.

Trivially, in a trivial manner, trivialement, d'une manière ordinaire & triviale.

He spoke very trivially, il n'a dit que des Choses triviales, il n'a rien dit d'élevé ou de recherché.

Triumph, un Triomphe.

A Triumph was a solemn and pompous Reception which the Romans used to bestow upon their Generals, when they returned victorious, le Triomphe étoit un Honneur grand, magnifique, solennel, & public, que les Romains rendoient à leurs Généraux qui avoient remporté quelque illustre Victoire sur les Enemis de l'Etat.

To demand, accept, or refuse the Honour of a Triumph, demande, accepter, refuser le Triomphe.

To decree a Triumph, decerner le Triomphe.

Cleopatra chose rather to bring Death upon her self, than to be carried alive in Triumph, Cleopatre aimoit mieux se faire mourir, que de souffrir qu'on la menât en Triomphe.

A stately, a magnificent Triumph, un superbe, un magnifique Triomphe.

The greater and the lesser Triumph, le grand & le petit Triomphe.

The Use of those Triumphs amongst the ancient Romans, as well as the great Incouragement which they gave to their Souldiers, did notably conduce to the Advancement of the Power and Greatness of that Empire. For, when any of their Generals returned victorious, he was received at Rome, with so much Pomp and Magnificence that to an ambitious Soul nothing could be more satisfactory. He sat in a Triumphant Chariot drawn with four Horses, the Prisoners he had taken following bound at the heels of his Chariot. His Souldiers compassed him about with their several Crowns, according to the quality of their well-deservings; and all the Senators, attended by the Priests and principal Ladies, went to meet him. He had on a Garment of State called Vestis Trabeata, with a Laurel-crown on his Head; and entered with a Noise of Drums and Trumpets, the Souldiers crying out IO Triumphe. This is in short an Account of that which properly had the name of a Triumph.

For there was a lesser sort of Triumph, called Ovatio, which differed from that in many Circumstances. As, 1. that the Ovator made his Entrance on foot, and was met only by the Knights and Gentlemen of Rome. 2. That he had only a Garland of Fir, with Flutes and Hoboys playing before him. 3. That he made his Entrance in a plain purple Gown only. And lastly, whereas the Triumpher used to sacrifice a certain Number of Oxen, the Ovator sacrificed Sheep only, from whence the Name is properly derived.

He makes a Triumph of it, il en fait un Sujet de Triomphe.

to Triumph, trionfer, recevoir l'Honneur du Triomphe; triomfer, subjuguier, avoir la Victoire; triomfer, s'applaudir, se rejouir d'une manière extraordinaire.

As, Bacchus was the first that triumphed in the Indies, and Romulus at Rome, Bacchus a triomphé le premier dans les Indes, & Romulus à Rome.

To triumph over his Enemies, trionfer de ses Enemis.

Philosophy triumphs easily over Evils past and to come, but present Evils are apt to overcome it, la Philosophie triomphe aisément des Maux passés & des Maux

Maux à venir, mais les Maux presens triomphent d'elle.

To triumph for Joy, trionfer de Joie.

Triumphal, as Triumphant, in the first Sense.

Triumphant, Triomfal, de Trionse; trionfant, qui trionse.

As, the Triumphant Arches, les Arcs Triomphaux. A Triumphant Chariot, Char de Trionse.

The Triumphant Arches were of Marble, and built after the manner of three Church-Porches. They were erected amongst the Romans, for them only who, having subdued whole Provinces, or conquered foreign Nations, and obtained noble Victories, were judged worthy of Triumph. From whence they came to be called Triumphant Arches. Upon which, for the perpetual Memorial of Acts achieved, were engraven the Portraiture of the very Places where the War was performed, the Resemblances of ranged Battels, if the Service was on Land, and of Ships, if it were at Sea. In Pliny's Days they began first to be built; before whose Time Statues and Trophies only were set up. At the Coronation of King Charles II, Anno 1663, there were erected in London four Triumphant Arches, which made a noble Shew.

A triumphant Valour, a Valour that triumphs, une Valeur triomphante.

Triumphantly, in a triumphant manner, d'une manière triomphante, en Trionse.

He came triumphantly through the City, il passa par la Ville en Trionse.

Triumphed over, dont on a trioncé.

Triumphier, Triomfateur.

The Triumphier sat in a Triumphant Chariot, le Triomfateur étoit assis dans un Char de Trionse.

Triumphing, l'action de trionser, &c. as in the Verb to Triumph; Trionse, Rejouissance.

Triumphingly, as Triumphantly.

Triumvir, one of the three Magistrates that governed Rome in chief, and that were called Triumviri, Triumvir, l'un des trois Magistrats qui gouvernoient souverainement à Rome.

The Triumvirs were Augustus, Mark Anthony, and Lepidus, les Triumvirs étoient Auguste, Marc Antoine, & Lepide.

Triumvirate, the Government of old Rome by the Triumviri, Triumvirat, le Gouvernement de l'ancienne Rome par les Triumvirs.

This Government hapned upon the Death of Julius Cæsar. To revenge which Death, Augustus Cæsar, Antonius, and Lepidus obtained chief Power and Authority for the Space of five Years throughout Rome; pretending that they would settle the Common-wealth, which at that time was much out of order. They had Power to enact any new Law, to reverse any former Act without the Consent of the Senate or Commons, and to prescribe or banish any Roman at their pleasure. Which Power they abused to that Degree, that they exercised excessive Cruelty towards all the Romans of what Degree soever. And, when the five Years were expired, they refused to resign their Authority; till at last Augustus got the whole Power into his own hands.

This is the chief Triumvirate mentioned in the Roman History, either simply called Triumviratus, or else Triumviratus Reip. Constituenda. Besides which there were many other inferior Triumvirates, which for brevities sake I pass by.

Tri-une. Ce Terme est admirable pour exprimer la Divinité en trois Personnes.

As, the tri-une God, un seul Dieu en trois Personnes.

Trochisk, a physical Composition made round like a Trencher, un Trochisque.

to Troll about, to ramble up and down in a fluttish or careless Dreis, courir de côté & d'autre dans un équipage mal-honnête.

A young Trollop, une petite Servante qui apprend à servir, une jeune Fille qui sert, & un petit Tortillon.

Tronage, a Custom (or Toll) taken for weighing of Wool, Droit que l'on paie pour peser la Laine.

The Word comes from Trona, a Beam to weigh with, un Peson.

Tronator, an Officer in the City of London, who weighs the Wool that is brought thither, Officier établi pour peser la Laine qui vient à Londres.

Troop, Troupe; Compagnie.

As, a Troop of Souldiers, une Troupe de Soldats.

A Troop of Horse, une Compagnie de Cavalerie. A fine Troop, une belle Compagnie.

Troops, or Forces, Troupes, ou Forces.

Old, or new Troops, de vieilles, ou de nouvelles Troupes.

to Troop (or get) together, s'attrouper, s'assembler.

To Troop away, to Troop off, or run away, se retirer, se sauver (en Compagnie.)

Trooper, Cavalier.

Trope, a Term of Rhetorick, Trope, Terme de Rhetorique.

A Trope is, when a Word is drawn from its proper and genuine Signification to another, as the Word Fire, when we say the Fire of Persecution. And the Difference between a Trope and a Figure is this. The first relates to particular Words only, the other concerns many Words, or the whole frame of a Sentence. The last most commonly uses Words elegantly in their native Signification, the other contrariwise.

Trophy, un Trophée.

As, to set up a Trophy, eriger un Trophée.

A stately Trophy, un superbe (un magnifique) Trophée.

A Trophy is a glorious Monument of a Victory, made either of Timber or Stone, and set up in the Place where the Enemies were vanquished, together with their Ensigns and other Spoils hanging upon it, on appelle Trophée un glorieux Monument de Victoire, fait de Bois ou de Pierre, & erigé au Lieu même où les Enemis ont été vaincus, avec leurs Armes & Depouilles.

Trophy-mony, or four Pence paid yearly by House-keepers, as Train-bands, (but charged upon the Landlord) for the Drums and Colours, &c. of their Company. Quatre Souls que chaque Chef de Famille paie tous les Ans pour les Frais des Tambours, & de l'Enseigne, &c. de sa Compagnie.

Tropick, Tropique.

As, the Trojick Circles, les Cercles Tropiques.

The same is also used Substantively, both in French and English.

As, the Tropicks of Cancer and Capricorn, les Tropiques de Cancer & de Capricorne.

These are two of the lesser Circles of a Sphere or Globe; both of an equal Distance from the Equator, that is twenty three Degrees and a half, that of Cancer in the Northern, and the other of Capricorn in the Southern Latitude. Called Tropick, from the Greek Tropos, which signifies Return. For, when the Sun is come to Cancer, about the twelfth of June, then we have our Summer-Solstice; and the Sun goes back from us, till it comes to Capricorn about September the twelfth, when is our Winter-Solstice. Thus the Sun makes his Way from the one Circle to the other, passing through the Equator twice a Year, in his way backward and forward to those Circles. Which borrow their Names of Cancer and Capricorn from the two Signs of the Zodiack so called, through which the Sun passes when he comes to those Circles.

To chuse Valentines, choisir les Valentins.

In the Church of Rome they call Valentines those Saints which are chosen as special Patrons, for the Year. In England 'tis a Custom different from that, and yearly observed upon S. Valentine's Day, the 14th. of February. About which Time the Birds feeling a new Heat by the Approach of the Sun, chuse their Mates, and begin to couple. In Imitation whereof the Custom of chusing Valentines here on S. Valentine's Day has been long since established. In order to which Choice, the Names of several Young Men and Maidens that are drawn are writ down severally upon pieces of Paper. Which being rolled up, the Men draw the Maidens Names, and these the Mens. So the Lot gives every Man a She Valentine, and every Maid a He one. Whereupon the Way is to present each other; and sometimes it proves a Match in good earnest.

Vestall, or Vestal Nun, Vestale, Fille Vierge dédiée au Service de la Deesse Veste du tems de Rome Payenne.

The Vestals were certain Virgins among the ancient Romans, first Instituted by Numa Pompilius, and Consecrated crated to the Goddess Vesta, from whom they were called Vestales. Which Word, according to Munster, is derived from the Hebrew Root signifying Fire. At first four of these Virgins or Votaries, and after six, were elected; whose Nunnery (or Religious House) stood near unto Castor's Temple. The Choice of them was made between the sixth and eleventh Year of their Age; and they were to remain in this Nunnery for the space of Thirty Years; ten Years to learn their Mysteries and Ceremonies, ten to exercise them, and the other ten to instruct and train up others. They were greatly honoured in the City, and had divers Privileges. When they went abroad, they were carried in Chariots, with an Iron Scepter in their hands; and had Officers going before them, as the Consuls had. And, if they met in their Way any Prisoner going to be executed, they had power to deliver him; provided they took their Oath that they came not that way on purpose.

The chief Office incumbent upon them was, to keep the sacred Fire; the Exinction whereof proved ominous, and did portend some evil Event shortly to happen. A second Part of their Office was to work Reconciliation between Parties offended; as may be gathered from Suetonius, who says that, by their Intercession Sylla was reconciled to Cæsar. In this Station they were to keep their Vow of Virginity. Which if they had the misfortune to break; after a full Conviction, they were buried alive. And, if through their Neglect, the sacred Fire came to be extinguished, they were carried into a dark Corner, stripped naked, and, with a Curtain drawn half way over 'em, scourged by the chief Pontife. Upon which the Fire forthwith was to be re-kindled, not with any other Fire, but only from the Sun-beams. For which purpose they had certain Instruments called scapula, made pyramidal, but hollow. So that the Beams, being collected within the Circumference, and meeting in the Vertex, did easily kindle any combustible Matter put into it, but black especially. For, as Philosophy teaches, a dark Colour doth congregate (or collect) the Beams, whereas Whiteness doth disperse them. When the Thirty Years were expired, (a long Time for Virginity) they were free to marry; and then they laid aside their Scepters, their Fillets, and other their Sacerdotal Ornaments. But commonly they did forbear Marriage, upon a threewd Observation made, that such of them as ventured upon it came to a tragical End.

Vested, (from the Verb to Vest) revetu. As, he is vested with a Sovereign Power, il est revêtu d'une Puissance Souveraine. Or thus. As, the Priest is vested, (speaking of a Roman Priest) le Prêtre a sa Chasuble.

¶ P'entre maintenant dans la plus grande Liste de Mots Composés qu'il y ait dans la Langue Angloise. C'est une Liste qui n'a point proprement de Bornes; & qui voudroit ranger ici tous les Mots que l'on peut composer de cette Preposition Negative & Inseparable trouveroit presque assez de Matière pour faire un Dictionnaire à part. Après cette grande Carrière que je vien de fournir, je serois bien aise qu'on eût la Complaisance de me laisser passer sans reproche par dessus cette Matière. Il semble, dans cette Veüe, qu'il suffiroit de vous dire, que, pour savoir la Signification des Composés de cet Ordre, il n'y auroit qu'à chercher le Simple, & à lui donner un Sens contraire & negatif. Mais, pour ne pas donner de prise à l'Envie, je veux bien franchir ce Pas. Et, sans porter la chose plus loin qu'il n'est nécessaire, je me contenterai de mettre principalement les Composés qui sont le plus en Usage.

Whereas we bury the Dead, the Romans used to burn them. And, when the Body was burnt, his nearest Friends did gather up the Ashes and Bones; which being washed with Milk and Wine, were put into certain Pitchers called Urnae. Whence this Word Urna is often used by the Poets, to signify a Grave or Sepulchre. And so Ovid uses it Metam. Lib. 4.

— Unâ requiescit in Urnâ.

Though properly Sepulcrum was a Vault, or arched Roof, round about the Walls whereof were placed certain Coffins called Loculi, within which the Urns were laid up and kept, two or three in each Coffin. Godwin's Rom. Antiq.

U S

Us, a Pronoun used instead of We after Verbs and Prepositions, nous.

As, he loves us, il nous aime. They please us, ils nous agréent.

Give us something, donnez nous quelque chose.

Of, to, with, without us, de, à, avec, sans nous.

Usage, coutume, accoutumance; traitement, maniere dont on en use à l'égard des Personnes.

'Tis the Usage of the Country, c'est la Coutume du País.

A kind, or an unkind Usage, un bon, ou mauvais Traitement.

Or thus. As, you know what Usage he is like to find, vous savez de quelle maniere apparemment on le traitera.

Ufance, Ufance, Pratique de la Banque.

Ufance is a Term used amongst Merchants. As, if a Merchant receive Money here, and engage by Bill of Exchange to pay the like Sum in Paris at Ufance, the Meaning is, that it shall be paid at a Months end. If he engage to pay it at double Ufance, that is to be understood at two Months end.

to Vy. See to Vie.

Vying, l'action d'envier, &c. as in the Verb to Vie.

W.

W. A Prononciation Angloise du W revient à celle de notre Ou en François. Exemple, water, west, win, wort; qu'il faut prononcer ouâter, ouest, ouin, ouart.

Maïs, lors qu'il est suivi d'r, il se fait aussi peu entendre que le k devant n, c'est à dire si peu que rien. Comme en ces Mots, wrath, wretched, writh, wrong, wrought, bewray.

Il est tout à fait muet dans Answer, & sous ses Derivatif. Et two se prononce tou; hormis dans two pence, qui se prononce familièrement to pins.

L'h se fait entendre devant le w en ces Mots, qu'il faut ainsi prononcer; savoir what boat, where boer, when boinn, which bousch, who boû, whom boûm, whose boûs, whole bôl, Whore Hôr.

Au reste, on peut dire que cette Lettre, aussi bien que l'y, fait la fonction de Voyelle & de Consonne. Elle est assurément Voyelle; lors qu'elle suit une autre Voyelle; comme en ces trois Diphtongues aw, ew, ow, qui sont fréquentes dans la Langue Angloise. Et on peut dire, qu'elle fait la fonction de Consonne, ou d'un double V Consonne, quand elle va devant une autre Voyelle; comme en water, wet, with, word, & autres semblables.

W A

When an Action of Debt or Detinue is brought against one for Goods lent or left with him, then the Defendant may wage his Law, if he will; that is, swear upon a Book, and certain Persons with him, that he detains not the Goods, nor owes any Thing to the Plaintiff in the manner and form as he has declared. Now the Offer to make the Oath is called Wage of Law; and, when it is accomplished, it is called Making (or Doing) the Law.

To wage Law (in the common Acceptation) that is, to prosecute the Law, pour suivre son Droit en Justice.

Wager, Gageure, Pari, Ce qu'on gage, ou parie.

To win the Wager, gagner la Gageure.

† Tis a considerable Wager, le Pari est considerable.

Or thus. As, 'tis an even Wager (or Lay) whether it is so or no, il y a lieu de douter si cela est.

I lay a Wager with you, that it is not so, je parie avec vous, que cela n'est pas.

I'll lay you any Wager, je parierai (je gagerai) avec vous tout ce que vous voudrez.

See to Wage.

Wages, Gages, Salaire.

To give a Servant good Wages, donner de bons Gages à un Serviteur.

What Wages have you? quels Gages (quel Salaire) avez vous?

Waggery, (from Wag) gaillardise, plaisanterie.

To be full of Waggery, avoir l'Esprit badin.

Wagging, (from the Verb to Wag) l'action de branler, &c. as in the Verb.

Waggish, (from Wag) badin, qui a l'Esprit badin.

He is mighty waggish, il a l'Esprit tout à fait badin.

† to Waggle, or be always in motion, être toujours en mouvement.

Wagon, Chariot, un Chariot couvert.

To travel in a Wagon, voyager dans un Chariot.

Wagoner, Charetier, Chartier, Voiturier.

Wagtail. See Wag-tail, under Wag.

Waif, any Thing that is found and claimed by no body, Tout ce qu'on trouve de quelque Importance, & que personne ne reclame.

† Waif is a Regality, and belongs to the King, except it be challenged by the Owner within a Year and a Day, or unless the Regality has been granted by a King to some Subject. For some of the former Kings have in their Times granted this and such like Prerogatives to Subjects, within their Liberties and Fees; whereby Waifs, Estrays, and Things lost are the Lord's of the Franchise where they are found. But they must first be cried and published in Markets and Churches near about, or else the Year and Day runs not to the prejudice of him that lost them. Otherwise the Detainer may be accused of Theft.

The Law gives also the Name of Waif, or Goods Waived, to Goods that a Thief has feloniously taken, who being newly followed with Hue and Cry, or else overcharged with the Burden or Trouble of the Goods, drops the said Goods, and leaves them behind him, for his own Ease, and more speedy Flight. In which Case the King's Officer, or the Bayliff of the Lord of the Mannor (within whose Jurisdiction they be left) having by Prescription, or Grant from the King, the Franchise of Waif, may seize the Goods so waived for his Lords Use. Except the Owner come with fresh Suit after the Felon, and sue an Appeal within a Year and a Day, or give Evidence against him at his Arraignment, and he be attainted, &c. In which Cases the first Owner shall have Restitution of his Goods so stolen and waived.

And, though Waif be properly said of Goods stolen, yet it may be also of Goods not stolen. As, if a Man be pursued with a Hue and Cry as a Felon, and he flies, and leaves his own Goods; these shall be forfeit as Goods stolen, and are properly called Fugitives Goods. But they are not quite lost to the Owner, till it be found before the Coroner, or otherwise of Record, that he fled for Felony.

† to Waif. See to Bewail.

This Word you will find used Rev. i. 7. where it is said, And all Kindreds of the Earth shall wail because of him, toutes les Tribus de la Terre meneront deuil devant lui.

to Waive, or forlake, quitter, abandonner.

As, to waive the Company of Thieves, quitter la Compagnie des Voleurs.

Waived, quitté, abandonné; condamnée par Contumace.

† As Outlawed is the Law-word for a Man, that, being sued in Law, contemtnously refuses to appear, so Waived is, for a Woman guilty of the same Contempt. For Women cannot be Outlawed, because they are not sworn in Leets to the King, nor to the Law, as Men are. So that a Man is said to be Outlawed, or without the

the Law, to which he was sworn; and a Woman Waived.

Waiward } See { Wayward.
Waiwardness } Waywardness.

Wake, the Wake (or Way) of a Ship. So the Seamen call that smooth Water which a Ship makes a Stern, when she is under Sail. Whereby a good Judgement may be given of the Speed the Ship makes in her Going; as also whether she doth go as she looks (as they say,) that is, whether she makes her Way as her Head lies.

to Wake, veiller; s'éveiller.

Wake him, veiller le.

It is not good to wake a sleeping Lion, (Prov.) n'éveille pas le Lion qui dort.

Wake-man, the chief Magistrate of Rippon in Yorkshire. C'est ainsi qu'on appelle le premier Magistrat de Rippon dans la Province d'York.

Wake-robin, sorte d'Herbe.

Wakes, or Country-Feasts, sorte de Rejouissance qui se fait encore en quelques Endroits d'Angleterre.

The Wakes are kept some Days after that Saints Day to whom the Parish-Church was dedicated. Which Feasts took Origin from a Letter written by Gregory the Great to Melitus Abbot, sent into England with S. Austin, in Words to this effect.

It is therefore permitted them (meaning the English) that in the Dedication-Days, or other solemn Days of Martyrs, they make them Bowers about the Churches, and feasting together after a good religious Sort, kill their Oxen to the Refreshing of themselves, to the Praise of God, and the Increase of Charity; which before they were wont to offer up in Sacrifice to the Devil, &c.

Now these Feasts came probably to be called Wakes, because on the Vigil of those Feasts people were wont to watch and pray, or to awake from Sleep at the several Vigils of the Night.

Waking, (from the Verb to Wake) l'action d'éveiller, ou de s'éveiller.

Wald. See Weald.

Wale-knot, Terme de Marine qui signifie un Neud rond fait de trois cordons d'une Corde en sorte qu'il ne puisse pas couler.

There are two sorts of Knots used at Sea, the Wale-knot, and the Bowling-knot, either of them so made that it will not slip nor slide.

Wale-reared. When a Ship is built frait up, after she comes to her bearing, she is said to be Wale-reared. Which is indeed unfightly, and not Ship-shapen, as the Seamen term it. But it causeth a Ship to be much roomier or larger within board, and withall makes her a holsom Ship in the Sea, that is makes her hull, try, and ride well, without rowling or labouring in the Sea.

Walk, Promenoir, Allée, un Chemin (ou Lieu) propre à se promener; Promenade, tour de Promenade.

As, this is the finest Walk in the Garden, voici la plus belle Allée du Jardin.

Here is a fine Walk, voici un aussi bel Endroit que celui là pour se promener.

To make a wast in Houses, &c. laisser dépérir des Maisons, &c.

Wast, in the Law, has divers Significations. First, 'tis a Spoil made either in Houses, Woods, Lands, &c. by the Tenant for Life or Years, to the Prejudice of the Heir, or of him in the Reversion or Remainder. Whereupon the Writ of Wast is brought for the Recovery of the Thing wasted, and treble Damages. But Wast of the Forest is most properly said, when a Man cuts down his own Woods in the Forest, without Licence of the King, or Lord Chief Justice in Eyre.

Wast is also taken for those Lands which are not in any Mans Occupation, but ly common. Probably so called, because the Lord cannot make such Profit of them as of his other Lands, by reason of that Use which others have of it in passing to and fro. And yet upon this none may build, cut down Trees, dig, &c. without the Lord's Licence.

Year, Day, and Wast, See Year. Impeachment of Wast, See Impeachment. To take one about the Wast, prendre quelqu'un par le Milieu du Corps.

At Sea all the Ships Company is divided into two Parts; the one called the Starboard Watch, the other the Larboard. Each of these are in their turns to watch, as also to trim the Sails, to pump, and do the like Duties, for four hours Space; and then the other Watch is to relieve them, for four hours more. So that the Time of a Watch, when the Ship is at Sea, is the Space of four hours. But, when the Ship is in Harbour or in a Road, they use to watch Quarter-Watch; and that is, when one Quarter of the Ships Company do watch together. Thus they allow themselves the larger Rest, as having less to look after. Of these Watches the Master is the Chief of the Starboard; and his right hand Mate (that is, his Mate who has his Cabbin on the right Side of the Master's Round-house) is Chief of the Larboard Watch.

Were it but for that, quand il n'y auroit que cela.

As it were, comme, pour ainsi dire, par maniere de dire.

Were-wolf, a Man-wolf, or Wolf-Man, un Loup-garou.

Were, amongst the old Saxons, was sometimes used for Man; so that Were-Wolf does properly signify a Man-Wolf. And that is a kind of Soreerer, who, having anointed his Body with an Ointment made by the Devil, and putting on a certain enchanted Girdle, does not only to the view of others seem as a Wolf, but to his own thinking has both the shape and nature of a Wolf, so long as he wears the said Girdle. And accordingly, as if he had really put on the Nature of a Wolf, he howls and acts like a Wolf, worrying and killing humane Creatures. In Germany and the Low-Countries several of these Were-Wolves have been taken; and particularly one Peter Stump, who, being convicted of having killed thirteen Children and one Man, was put to Death not far from Cologne Anno 1589.

There is one good Wife in the Country, and every Man thinks he has her, s'il y a une bonne Femme dans tout le Pais, chacun se vante de l'avoir.

He that loseth his Wife and six Pence has lost a Tester, Celui qui perd sa Femme & six Sous ne perd que six Sous. Ainsi le Proverbe conte la Femme pour rien.

A grunting Horse and a groaning Wife seldom deceive their Master, les Chevaux sont sujets à être malades, & les Femmes sujettes à se plaindre.

'Tis observable that, by the Law, all the Will of the Wife is subject to the Will of the Husband; and it is commonly said, A Feme covert has no Will, il est à remarquer que, par la Loi d'Angleterre, la Volonté de la Femme est entièrement sujette à celle de son Mari; & c'est une Règle parmi les Jurisconsultes, qu'une Femme mariée n'a point de Volonté, cd. que sa Volonté est comme absorbée dans celle de son Mari.

Cette Maxime, sans conter les Proverbes Anglois, qui sont les plus mordans qu'il y ait contre ce Sexe, paroit d'autant plus surprenante que, de tous les Pais de l'Europe, l'Angleterre est celui où l'on traite les Femmes avec le plus d'honnêteté & de complaisance.

On peut dire mêmes, qu'on le fait jusques dans l'excès. Et c'est ce qui a donné lieu en partie à cette Remarque, Que l'Angleterre est le Paradis des Femmes, le Purgatoire des Hommes, & l'Enfer des Chevaux.

To wire-draw a Business, to spin it out into a long time, tirer une Affaire en longueur.

To wire-draw one, to get what one can out of him, tirer d'une personne ce que l'on peut.

VVire-drawn, tiré, &c. according to the Verb.

VVifard. See VVizard.

VVifdom, Sageste, Connoissance des Choses hautes & sublimes; Sageste, Prudence.

As, the VVifdom of God is infinite, la Sageste de Dieu est infinie.

Mens greatest VVifdom is but foolishness to God, la plus grande Sageste des Hommes n'est que folie devant Dieu.

Young People have the least portion of Light to see into Things, a great deal of Passion to desire them, and little VVifdom to bring 'em about, les Jeunes gens ont le moins de Penetration pour prévoir l'Avenir, ils sont violens dans leurs Desirs, & manquent de Prudence pour les accomplir.

'Tis VVit to pick a Lock, but VVifdom to let it alone, (Prov.) s'il faut avoir de l'Adresse pour crocheter une Serrure, c'est un effet de la Prudence de s'en abstenir.

Two Things our Saviour commends to us from his other Creatures, viz. VVifdom from the Serpent, and Innocency from the Dove, and those two ought to stand together: For, as VVifdom without Innocency will make us unjust Stewards, and wrong our Master; so Innocency without VVifdom will make us too forward with Peter, and wrong our selves, Notre Sauveur nous recommande deux Choses tirées de ses autres Creatures, savoir la Prudence du Serpent, & la Simplicité de la Colombe, & toutes deux doivent agir de concert: Car la Prudence sans la Simplicité nous porteroit à l'Injustice, & nous rendroit semblables à ce Maître d'Hôtel qui pour ses propres Interets trahissoit ceux de son Maître; & la Simplicité, sans le secours de la Prudence, nous engageroit trop avant, comme S. Pierre, & nous feroit tort en nous rendant temeraires.

VVise, sage, prudent; entendu, habile, intelligent, d'esprit.

As, a wise Man, un Homme sage, un Homme prudent. He is a very wise Man, c'est un Homme fort prudent.

VVise Men care not for what they cannot have, un Homme sage ne se soucie pas d'avoir ce qui n'est pas en sa puissance.

A wise VVoman, une Femme sage, ou prudente.

To become wise at another Man's cost, devenir sage aux dépens d'autrui.

One may better be wise for others than for himself, il est plus aisé d'être sage pour les autres, que de l'être pour soi même.

As wise as you are, tout habile Homme que vous êtes.

A Thing to be wished, une Chose souhaitable, ou à souhaiter.

Wisher. As, a Well-wisher to one, un bon Ami de quelqu'un, une Personne qui lui souhaite bon Succès.

Wishing, l'Action de souhaiter, &c. as in the Verb to Wish.

Wishly, doux, amoureux.

As, to cast a wishly Look upon a Lady, (or Adverbially) to look upon her wishly, faire les doux Yeux à une Belle, lui jeter des Oeillades.

Wisp, a wisp of straw, un Torchon.

To rub Horses with a Wisp of straw, frôter les Chevaux avec un Torchon.

Will with a Wisp, or William with a Wisp, the same as Jack in a Lantern. See Jack.

† An Arse-wisp, or bum-fodder, un torche-cul.

† Wist. As, had I wist, or had I known, si je l'avois su.

This is all that is left of the old Saxon Verb Wistan, to Know.

Beware of had I wist. C'est à dire, prenez si bien vos Mesures, que vous ne soyez pas réduit à dire, Si je l'avois su. Car, comme dit le Latin, Non est Sapientis dicere, Non putabam.

Wit, esprit, ou subtilité d'Esprit; sagesse, prudence; Esprit, ou Genie.

As, to have a great deal of wit, avoir beaucoup d'esprit.

He has a great deal of Wit, and but little Judgement, il a beaucoup d'Esprit, & peu de Jugement.

His Speeches are all full of wit, ses Harangues sont toutes pleines d'esprit.

Let us confess, that there is nothing so well shared as Wit, feeling every one thinks he has enough on't, avouons qu'il n'est rien de si bien partagé que l'Esprit, puis que tout le monde croit en avoir assez.

A Man of good Wit, un Homme d'Esprit.

I pray God send you more Wit, je prie Dieu qu'il vous donne plus d'Esprit.

Would you would shew more of your Wit, and less of your Substance, il seroit à souhaiter que vous fissent paroître plus d'Esprit, sans faire eclater comme vous faites vos Richesses.

Bought Wit is best, la Sagesse qu'on achète cherement est la meilleure, c'est à dire, qu'il n'est rien de tel que d'être sage à ses dépens. A quoi revient le maxime des Grecs, & le Nocumenta Documenta des Latins.

A fine Wit, un bel Esprit, ou un Esprit fin.

An excellent Wit, un excellent Esprit.

An extraordinary Wit, un Esprit (ou un Genie) extraordinaire.

An acute, a subtle, shrewd, quick, smart, or piercing Wit, un Esprit pérant, subtil, ou pénétrant.

Workt, the Preter Tense and Participle of the Verb to Work. See to Work.

World, Monde (dans la plupart de ses Significations.)

As, the Creation of the World, la Création du Monde.

Since the Beginning of the World, Since the World stood, Since the World began, depuis le Commencement (depuis la Création) du Monde.

God created the World, and raised it out of Nothing, in the space of six Days, Dieu a créé le Monde, & l'a tiré du Néant, dans l'espace de six Jours.

As long as the World endures, tant que le Monde durera.

To bring Children into the World, mettre des Enfants au Monde.

To come into the World, or to be born, venir au Monde, naître.

To go out of the World, to leave this World, or to die, quitter ce Monde, mourir.

That we brought nothing into this World is not more every where known than it is of every one believed; but that we shall carry nothing out of this World is a Sentence better known than trusted, otherwise Men would take more care to live well than to die rich, Chacun sait par expérience, que nous n'apportons rien dans ce Monde, quand nous y entrons; & il n'est pas moins manifeste, que nous n'emportons rien avec nous, quand nous en sortons; cependant, comme si l'on se desoloit d'une Vérité si connue, on ne s'applique pas tant à bien vivre qu'à mourir riche.

This World is fitly compared unto a Sea, our Life is the Ship, we are the Passengers, the Grave is the common Haven where we unload, and Heaven is the Shore, le Monde est fort à propos comparé à la Mer, notre Vie c'est le Vaisseau, nous sommes les Passagers, le Tombeau est le Port où nous allons tous débarquer, & le Ciel est le Rivage.

There is nothing in this World but Dangers, and Discontents, Vanity, and Vexation; then only shall we be at rest, when we cease to be, ce Monde est plein par tout de Dangers, & de Chagrins, de Vanité, & d'Inquiétudes; & nous n'avons qu'un Temps pour être en repos, c'est lors que nous serons morts.

We are in this World as Israel in the Wilderness, and Christ is to us as Moses was to them; if he leave us, we know not which way to turn our selves, Nature cannot carry us to God; Nous sommes dans ce Monde ce qu'étoient les Israélites dans le Desert, & Christ est à notre égard ce que Moïse étoit à ce Peuple là; s'il nous abandonne, nous ne savons où aller, la Nature n'est pas assez éclairée pour nous conduire jusqu'à Dieu.

There is nothing like it in the whole World, le Monde ne produit rien de tel.

There is nothing in the World that I love so much, il n'y a rien dans le Monde que j'aime tant.

'Tis the best Thing in the World for it, c'est la meilleure chose du Monde pour cela.

He is the fittest Man in the World for such a Thing, c'est l'Homme du Monde le plus propre pour une Affaire de cette nature.

He is known all the World over, il est connu par tout le Monde.

He will be well spoken of to the World's end, on parlera bien de lui jusques à la fin du Monde.

You had been the maddest Man in the World, vous auriez été l'Homme le plus insensé du Monde.

The New World, otherwise called America, or the West Indies, le Nouveau Monde, l'Amérique, ou les Indes Occidentales.

All the World know's it, every body know's it, tout le Monde le sait.

I fear nothing, I shall declare it to all the World, je ne crain rien, je le dirai devant tout le Monde.

To begin the World, se mettre en quelque passe pour vivre.

To know the World, entendre le Monde.

The World is so degenerate, le Monde est si dégénéré.

So goes the World, ainsi va le Monde.

There is a World (or great Number) of People before his Door, il y a une quantité de monde devant sa Porte.

A World of small Stars, un Monde de petites Etoiles.

The World to come, le Monde à venir.

To think of the next World, penser à l'autre Monde.

Or thus. As, to begin the World again, recommencer de nouveau, tâcher de se remettre sur pied.

By no means in the World, you shan't do it by no means in the World, vous ne le ferez point, gardez vous en bien, je ne le souffrirai pas.

He minds nothing in the World, il ne se met en peine de rien, il ne songe à quoi que ce soit.

I know not in the World what to do, je ne sais que faire, ou de quel côté me tourner.

I know not which way in the World to hide it, je ne sais comment le cacher.

Just for all the World as if, justement comme si.

'Tis to no end in the World, c'est en vain, ou cela ne sert à rien.

They are no where in the World to be found, on ne les peut trouver nulle part.

He shed a world of Tears, il a versé un torrent de Larmes.

He has shed a world of Blood, il a bien versé du Sang, il a versé des Ruissaux de Sang.

World without end (an Expression only used in the Common Prayers) à jamais, éternellement.

To be before hand in the World, être à son aise, faire bien ses Affaires.

To have the World in a string, or to drive the World before him, être heureux, avoir tout à souhait.

The World is well amended with him, il est en belle passe au prix de ce qu'il a été, ses Affaires ont bien changé de face.

To be behind hand in the World, faire mal ses Affaires, être mal dans ses Affaires.

One had as good be out of the World, autant vaudroit il être mort.

To be going out of the World, être à l'agonie, être à l'extrémité, se mourir.

I am for the Woods against the World, that is, before any Thing, je préfère les Bois à toute autre chose.

What says the World of me? que dit on de moi?

The World says, that you are not fit to be trusted, on dit, que vous n'êtes pas un Homme à qui l'on doive se fier.

Worldliness, (from Worldly) Attachement au Monde, Mondanité.

Worldling, a worldly-minded Man, un Mondain, un Homme du Monde, un Homme attaché au Monde.

The Worldling is like the Hart that weeps every Year for the shedding of his Head, though to make room for a better; he can't indure to part with what he hath, though it be for a Treasure in Heaven, le Mondain, semblable au Cerf qui pleure quand il est en mue, ne peut pas se résoudre à changer ce qu'il a de corruptible ici bas pour une Couronne Incorruptible dans le Ciel.

Worldly, mondain, du Monde, attaché au Monde, abandonné aux Vanités du Monde; mondain, du Monde, sensuel.

As, a Worldly Mind, or worldly Man, un Esprit mondain, une Personne du Monde.

Worldly Minds mind nothing but worldly Things; like Laban and Nabal, who thought of nothing but their Sheep-shearing, and making merry when they had done, their Business is thought on, not their Salvation, which is with them only matter of course, les Esprits mondains ne songent qu'aux choses de ce Monde; ils sont comme Laban & Nabal, qui bornoient leurs Pensées à tondre leurs Brebis, & en suite à se rejouir, ils ne pensent qu'à leurs Affaires, & non à leur Salut, qu'ils considèrent seulement comme un Accessoire.

Worldly (or sensual) Pleasures, des Plaisirs mondains, des Plaisirs sensuels.

Worm, un Ver, ou Vermisseau (dans le Sens propre, & figuré;) un Tire-bourre.

The Worms thun bitter Things, and love that which is sweet, les Vers sucent les choses amères, & ils aiment les douceurs.

A Silk-worm, un Ver à Soie. An Earth-worm, un Ver de Terre.

Tread on a Worm, and it will turn, (Prov.) marchez sur un Ver, & il se tournera. C'est à dire, qu'il n'y a point de si chétive Creature qui ne respire la Vengeance, quand on la maltraite.

A Belly-worm; Ver long qui s'engendre dans les Entrailles de certains Animaux, à quoi la Femmeuse sur tout est fort sujette.

To be full of Worms, être plein de Vers.

The Worms begin from our Infancy to gnaw our Entrails, and the most lofty Princes come at last to be their Food in the Grave, les Vers commencent à nous ronger les Entrailles dès notre bas Age, & les Princes les plus ambassadeurs leur servent en fin de pâture dans le Tombeau.

A hand-worm, un ciron. A glow-worm, un Ver luisant. A Shoe-worm, une Anvoise.

A Dog-worm, Ver qui s'engendre dans la Langue du Chien, & qui le rend enragé si on ne l'ôte.

A Wood-worm, Ver qui s'engendre dans le Bois.

A Worm, a wretched Creature, un Ver de Terre, un malheureux Mortel.

Man is but a Worm, and the Son of Man is but a little Worm, (Job 25. 6.) l'Homme n'est qu'un Ver, & le Fils de l'Homme n'est qu'un Vermisseau.

How long wretched, Mortals, will you forget that you are but silly Worms of Earth? jusques à quand, pauvres Mortels, oublierez vous que vous n'êtes que des Vers de Terre?

The

Wyte } See { Wite.

X. Y. Z.

La Matière de ces trois Lettres est si peu de chose dans l'une & dans l'autre Langue, qu'elle ne merite pas qu'on en fasse trois Chefs differens.

Hormis quelques Noms Propres, qui ne sont pas de mon Sujet, il n'y a point de Mot qui commence par X. Le Nombre de ceux qui commencent par Y est peu considerable; & Ceux qui commencent par Z sont encore en plus petit Nombre.

Dans la Prononciation Angloise de ces trois Lettres, il se trouve fort peu de difficulté.

X se prononce toujours comme nous le prononçons dans Xantippe, Xerxes, Ximenes. Exemple wax, tex, fix, box.

Z, à l'imitation de l's, prend le Son du g doux dans ces Mots, Brazier, Glazier, Grazier, Ozier, & autres semblables.

Y se considère de deux différentes manières, comme une Voyelle, ou comme une Consonne.

On peut dire qu'elle revêt la Nature d'une Consonne au commencement des Mots & des Syllabes, où elle se trouve suivie d'une Voyelle.

En ce Cas elle se prononce en Anglois comme en François. Exemple yard, yet, yield, youth, Bowyer, Lawyer, Sawyer.

Y purement Voyelle se trouve à la fin des Mots, & s'y prononce comme un i François. Exemple humbly, constantly, prudently; any, angry, witty, ready, furly; Philosophy, Anatomy, constancy, fervency, duty, &c.

Il en faut excepter certains Mots qui prennent le son d'ai, & d'autres qui se prononcent en é.

Ceux qui prennent le Son d'ai, mais avec un certain adoucissement, sont 1. les Monosyllabes; comme my, thy, fly, why, by, cry, fly.

2. Les Verbes dont l'Infinitif se termine en y. Ex. to deny, to defy, apply, reply, comply, supply, A quos ajoûtez cet Adjectif awry.

Hormis ceux ci où l'y se prononce à la Française; savoir to marry, tarry, hurry, vary, rally, fancy, & quelques autres.

Entre les Mots où l'y prend le Son de notre é, je conte ces Substantifs qui derivent des Noms Latins finissant en tas. Comme charity, liberality, chastity, majesty, bounty, City.

Il y en a quelques autres qui prennent le même Son, savoir County, Country, Guiny, Amity, Army, Query, Inquiry, very, &c.

Voilà à peu pres tout ce que l'on peut dire sur la Prononciation Angloise de ces trois Lettres. J'entre maintenant dans l'Explication des Mots qui commencent par les deux der-

To be full of Zeal, avoir bien du Zele.

To burn with Zeal for the Service of God, brûler de Zele pour le Service de Dieu.

To inspire Zeal, donner du Zele.

Zealot, a great Stickler in matter of Religion, un Zelateur, un Homme ardent.

Zealous, or full of Zeal, Zele, plein de Zele, qui a du Zele.

Zealous for the Service of God, Zele pour le Service de Dieu.

He is not Zealous at all, il n'est point Zele du tout.

To be zealous for his Party, être zele pour son Parti.

Zealously, avec Zele.

He pray'd very Zealously, il a prié avec beaucoup de Zele.

Or thus. As, Gal. 4: 18. It is good to be Zealously affected always in a good Thing, il est bon d'être toujours jaloux en Bien.

Zechin, un Sequin.

†Tis a Coin of Gold current in the State of Venice, and worth about seven Shillings, and six Pence sterling. Called Zechin from la Zeccha in Venice, where the Mint is. But there's besides a Turkish Zechin, valued at nine Shillings sterling.

Zedoary, a Root not unlike Ginger, Zedoaire, sorte de Racine qui ressemble au Gingembre.

Zedoary is good against a pestilential Disease, le Zedoaire est bon contre la Peste.

Zenith, or vertical Point, Zenith, Point vertical.

† This is an Arabian Word, signifying properly the Point of the Firmament directly over our Heads. Opposite to which is Nadir, the Point which is directly under our Feet.

Zereth, an Hebrew Measure of nine Inches, Zereth, Mesure de neuf Ponces.

Zest, Zest.

We call Zest the peel of an Orange squeezed into a Glass of Wine, to give it a flavour, On appelle Zest un morceau d'écorce d'Orange dont on exprime une sorte de Jus dans un Verre de Vin pour lui donner un petit goût d'Orange.

†Zest, or Afternoons Sleep, †Meridienne.

To go to his Zest, s'en aller dormir après qu'on a dîné, faire la Meridienne.

Zodiack, le Zodiaque.

† The Zodiack is an oblique imaginary Circle in the Firmament, dividing the Sphere cross the Equinoctial into two Points; viz. the beginning of Aries and Libra; in the midst whereof is the Ecliptick Line. Its utmost Limits are the two Tropicks; Cancer and Capricorn; its Length, 360. Degrees; and Breadth, 16.

The same is divided into Twelve Signs, which the Sun does run over once a Year. Six of those Signs are Northern, viz. Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo; and the six others Southern, namely, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius, and Pisces. This Circle turns upon its own Poles from West to East.

Zone, a Term of Geography, une Zone.

† The World is divided into five Zones, to wit, one Torrid, two Temperate, and two others Frigid, on divise le Monde en cinq Zones, savoir la Zone Torride, les deux Zones Tempérées, & les deux Froides.

† The Torrid Zone reaches from one Tropick Circle to another, and so takes up 47. Degrees of Latitude, which (at the rate of 20. Leagues or 60. Miles a Degree) comes to 940. Leagues, or 2820. Miles. In this Zone it is that almost all Africk, and the better part of the Southern America, lie; besides a small Part of Asia, and of the Northern America.

And it is called Torrid, or Over-hot, because of the great and constant Heat of it, caused by the Sun's continual Course and Return betwixt the two Tropicks, where this Zone is placed. Which made the Ancients erroneously believe, that it could not be Inhabited for Heat. But 'tis found since by Experience, that it is not only Inhabited, but, in some Places most fruitfull and pleasant to live in.

The two Temperate Zones are one Northern, and the other Southern. The Northern, wherein we live, lies betwixt the Tropick of Cancer and the Arctick Circle; and the Southern, betwixt the Tropick of Capricorn and the Antarctic Circle. Each of them takes up 43. Degrees of Latitude, which comes to 860. Geometrical Leagues, or 2580. Miles. Both called Temperate Zones, because, lying (as they do) betwixt the Torrid Zone and the Frigid, they are so tempered with Heat and Cold, that neither of them is so hot as the Torrid, or so cold as the Frigid. In the Northern Temperate Zone lies almost all Europe and Asia, and the greatest Part of the Northern America; and in the Southern, a small Part of Africk, and almost one half of the Southern America, besides what has been discovered of Terra Australis.

The two Frigid Zones are also one Northern, the other Southern. And they both lie in the utmost Parts of the World, the Northern betwixt the Arctick Circle and the Arctick Pole, and the Southern, betwixt the Antarctic Circle and the Antarctic Pole. So that each of them contains 23. Degrees and a half, which comes to 470. Geometrical Leagues, or 1340. Miles. Called Frigid, or Over-cold, because, being extremely remote from the Course of the Sun through the Zodiack, they partake but a little of its Heat, having its Beams but oblique, and without any reflection. For which Reason, besides their constant Darkness in Winter-time for several Months, the ancient Geographers and Historians could not imagine these Zones to be at all inhabited, no more than the Torrid for its exceeding Heat. But it proves a Mistake; though 'tis confessed, as to the Northern Frigid Zone, which is partly known to us, that it is but thinly peopled. In which Zone Part of Norway and Lapland in Europe is situate, some Part of Tartary in Asia, and Terra Borealis.

Zoophyte, a Word used among Naturalists for a Plant-Animal, such as Oysters and Spunges, Zoophyte, moitié Animal moitié Plante.

THE ADDITIONS TO THE English-French Part.

Advertisment.

TIS to be expected, that, at the first Sight of these ADDITIONS, and Those that belong to the first Part of this Book, some People will be apt to think, that they are so many Words left out in the Body of the Work. Whereas they for the most part consist of new Phrases, and some particular Senses I discovered, since the Sheets were wrought off. Which I thought convenient to add by way of Appendix; that there may be the less wanting to this Book, from which there are so great Expectations.

Avant que de commencer, je prendrai ici connoissance d'une Faute d'Impression dans la 1. Page, Col. 3. Ligne 2. C'est la Division qui separe a de bed, foot, bread, & thirst. Ce qui ne devoit pas être; puis que, suivant la Regle comprise dans la Ligne qui precede, l'a sy doit joindre avec le Substantif.

Abash'd. Though the Verb to Abash be worn out of Use, yet its Participle Abashed may very well be used, especially in a grave and serious Subject. As, I am abashed at it, j'en ai de la confusion.

We are abashed at our Ingratitude, nous avons honte de nôtre Ingratitude. to Abbreviate. As, to abbreviate his Discourse, to make it shorter, abbreger son Discours.

Abearing, or A-bearing. As, to be bound to good a-bearing, or to his good Behaviour, être obligé dans les formes à tenir une Conduite reguliere à l'avenir.

Good Abearing is, by a special Signification, an exact Carriage or Behaviour of a Subject to the King and his Liege People, whereunto Men upon their evil course of Life, or loose Demeanour, are sometimes bound. And he that is bound to this is more strictly bound than to the Peace. For the Peace is not broken without an Affray; but this Surety de bono Gestu may be forfeited by the Number of a Mans Company, or by his or their Weapons or Harnes.

to Abhor, avoir en horreur.
As, to abhor a Thing, to hate it, avoir une Chose en horreur.

Abjuration, in the Sense of the Law, is a forswearing of the Realm for ever. Whereas Relegation is taken for a Banishment for a Time only.

†Ablegation, or sending. This Word I read in a good Author, but I look upon it as little forced.

As, an ablegation of the Spirits into a part of the Body, l'envoi des Esprits dans quelque partie du Corps.

Abnegation is a good Word for a Denial in some Cases.

As, St. Peter's Abnegation, l'Abnegation de S. Pierre.

With a full abnegation of our Wills, avec une entiere resignation de nos Volontez.

Above, passé.

As, above three Months, passé trois Mois.

About. As, to ly about, or to ly up and down, être dispersé ça & là, être tout en desordre.

to Abridge, éter, retrancher, priver, diminuer.

Why would you abridge them of that Freedom? pourquoi voudriez vous les priver de cette Liberté?

That Clause abridges a Denison of that full benefit which natural Subjects do enjoy, cette Clause fait qu'un Denison n'a pas tout à fait les mêmes Avantages qu'un Sujet naturalisé.

Absolute, parfait, achevé.

As, 'tis a complete and absolute Piece, c'est une Piece achevée.

Absolutely, sans reserve.

I am absolutely your most humble Servant, je suis sans reserve vôtre tres humble Serviteur.

†Absonous, or absurd, absurde, ridicule.

to Absorb, absorber, engloutir.

As, to absorb all his Revenues, absorber tous ses Revenus.

Absorbed, absorbé, englouti.

Scotus his Opinion was, that Christ's glorify'd Body is absorbed in the Divine Nature, and is not local, nor visible, c'étoit l'Opinion de Scotus, que le Corps de Jesus Christ glorifié est absorbé dans la Nature divine, & qu'il n'est point local, ni visible.

Abundant. As, there is abundant evidence for that purpose, il y a une infinité de preuves pour cela.

Avis.

JE ne doute point, qu'en jettant les Yeux sur ces ADDITIONS, & celles qui sont à la suite de la premiere Partie, plusieurs ne concluent d'abord que ce sont tout autant de Mots omis dans le Corps de l'Ouvrage. Au lieu que ce ne sont la plupart que des Phrases nouvelles, & des Sens particuliers, que j'ai decouverts, quand les Feuilles ont été tirées. J'ai cru qu'il étoit à propos d'en faire un Corps de Reserve. Et, quoi que la Chose soit un peu Irreguliere, elle ne laissera pas que de remplir en quelque façon les Esperances que le Public a conçues de cet Ouvrage.

to Abuse, surprendre, tromper.
To abuse the King's Equity, to over-reach his Justice, surprendre la Justice du Roi.

Abus'd, surpris, trompé.

He was abus'd in that Business, il a été surpris dans cette Affaire.

He may be made one day sensible how his Equity has been constantly abus'd, peut être aura-t-il de l'horreur pour les Surprises continuelles que l'on fait à son Equité.

Accent. As, the musical Accents of finging Birds, les Notes melodieuses des Oiseaux de Chant.

Accloy'd, or fatiated, affadi.

My Stomach is accloy'd with these sweet Meats, ces Confitures m'ont affadi l'Estomac.

Accommodately. As, every Thing is there represented so accommodatly to the capacity of the People, tout y est si bien depeint suivant la portée du Peuple.

to Accord (or agree) with, s'accorder.

They accorded well together, ils s'accordoient bien ensemble.

Account. As, to give an account of a Thing, représenter une Chose.

Perspective is a Science which gives an account of the Sight and Species, la Perspective est une Science qui rend raison de la Veue & des Objets.

Accountred. As, the Gards appeared very well accountred, les Gardes parurent en tres bel Equipage.

to Accrue. These are Things that accrue to the Heir with the House it self by Custom, ces Choses là sont des Dependances de la Maison que la Coûtume a rendues Inseparables, & dont l'Heritier s'empare avec la Maison.

†Accustomarily, communément, ordinairement.

Accustomary, or rather Customary, accoutumé, commun, ordinaire.

to Acquire, or learn, acquerir, ou apprendre.

THE ADDITIONS.

To acquire a Language, acquérir une Langue. Acquisition. As, for the acquisition of a Language, pour apprendre une Langue. Acquisitious, that may be acquired, qu'on peut acquérir. An acquisitious Idea, une Idée qu'on peut acquérir. to Acquit. As, the Court has acquitted him, la Cour l'a renvoyé absous. Acre, l'Arpent d'Angleterre. Pour expliquer plus amplement ce que c'est, j'ajouterai ici l'Explication qu'en fait Cogrove. Il contient, dit il, 40. Perches de longueur, & quatre de largeur, cd. 260. Perches carrées. Car la Perche est longue de cinq Verges & demie, & la Verge longue de trois piez; de sorte que la Perche est de seize piez & demi. Act, coup; Aulique, ou l'Acte de la Docteurie. As, to do an ill act, faire un mauvais coup. To perform the Act, faire son Aulique. What they call Commencement at Cambridge, the same goes by the Name of Act at Oxford. And that is a proper Time, when Students make their last Exercises in order to taking their Degrees, especially the Degree of Doctor; which happens once a Year. Adamantine, or inviolable, inviolable. Adamantine Laws and Ties of Religion, des Loix & des Liens de Religion inviolables. to Add. As, we can add nothing to God, that is, we can add nothing to his Glory or Happiness, il n'est pas en notre pouvoir d'ajouter la moindre Chose à la Gloire ou à la Felicité de Dieu. Dieu est revêtu d'une Gloire si souveraine, & jouit d'une Felicité si parfaite, qu'il n'est pas possible d'y rien ajouter. Addition, avantage; ornement, embellissement. As, this is a great addition to it, c'est un grand Avantage; also c'est un grand Ornement, ou Embellissement. Address. A ce que j'ai dit sur ce Mot dans le Corps de l'Ouvrage, j'ajoute ici, que la Maniere de presenter des Adresses au Roi est une Chose particuliere à la Nation Angloise, & qui se fait en des Occasions extraordinaires. Chaque Corps, ou Communauté, qui est dans le dessein de presenter une Adresse, s'assemble pour cet effet. Et, quand on en est convenu, on depute un Membre du Corps pour la composer. Cela étant fait avec l'Approbation du Corps, les Particuliers y apposent leur Seing, & on en depute les Chefs pour la presenter au Roi. On la lit en sa presence; & si c'est un Sujet qui plaise à Sa Majesté, elle la reçoit avec des Marques d'une Bonté Royale. On peut appeler ces Adresses des Complimens, ou des Actes de Reconnoissance. C'est de cette nature qu'étoit ce Nombre infini d'Adresses qui ont été depuis peu presentées de tous les Coins de l'Angleterre au Roi, pour la Liberté de Conscience qu'il a plu à Sa Majesté d'accorder à toutes les Sectes. Mais il y a d'autres Adresses, qu'on peut appeler des Requetes, pour ne pas dire des Plaintes. Celles qu'on presenta au Roi défunt vers la fin de son Regne, pour le prier de convoquer un Parlement, étoient de cette nature; & le Roi les recevoit, comme on peut croire, avec un chagrin secret. to Adjust, accommoder. He came to adjust that Business, il vint pour accommoder cette Affaire. to Advance, rehausser. 'Tis by that means that the Cardinal advanced the Glory of his Purple, c'est par là que le Cardinal rehaussoit l'éclat de sa Pourpre. Or thus. As, this is that on which we advance all our Hopes, c'est cela même sur quoi nous fondons (ou sur quoi nous faisons rouler) toutes nos Esperances. Advocate. In the Phrase belonging to this Word, in the second Part, read Avocat, instead of Avocate.	Æquilibrious. See Equilibrious in these Additions. Festival, d'Esté. As, the æstival and hybernal Stars, les Etoiles d'Esté & d'Hiver, cd. qui ne paroissent dans notre Hemisphere que l'Esté, ou l'Hiver. to Affect. In the second Phrase belonging to this Word in the second Part, read penetré de votre Eloquence. Affected. As, it appears how he stands affected, il paroit bien quel parti il a pris. Affection, qualité. Non-entity can have no affection, nor property, le Neant est incapable d'aucune qualité, ou propriété. to Affix. He affixed in the same place an Answer to it, il y afficha sa Réponse. Affray, (a Law-Word) Combat, ou Escarmouche entre quelques Personnes. The Word comes from the French effrayer to affright, and therefore may be without Word or Blow given. But it is commonly taken for a Skirmish, or Fighting, betwixt two or more. Asoretime, auparavant, (as Dan. 6. 10.) After-Ages, Siecles suivans. After-math, or after-grass, Regain, la seconde Herbe d'un Pré. Against. That's against all Probability, cela choque la Vraisemblance. to Agglomerate, or to roll it self up into a round shape, as a Hog-louse, se ramasser dans une forme ronde. Agitated. As, this Point was agitated betwixt them, ce Point fut agité (ou debatü) entre eux. Agitation. While these Things were in agitation, dans ces Entrefaites. A Treaty of Peace was in agitation betwixt him and the King of France, il y avoit un Traité de Paix sur pied entre Lui & le Roi de France. to Ail. As, what ails that Fellow? quelle Mouche a piqué ce Sos? que veut dire ce Sos? Alamode, a kind of Silk, sorte de Taffetas qui tient un milieu entre le Sarinet & le Lutestring. Alas, Substantively used, un Helas. As, a very pathetick Alas, un Helas bien passionné. All. As, to go upon all four, marcher à quatre pattes, cd. se traîner par terre sur les genoux & avec les mains. Without all contradiction, sans contredit. When I was rich I was all in all with him, lors que j'étois riche, j'étois son Tout. All-fours, sorte de Jeu de Cartes, où l'on ne peut jouer que deux. 'Tis a Game much play'd in Kent, whence it took its Original. All-seings, à qui rien n'est caché. Alledgement, Allegation. to Allegorize. As, to allegorize upon a Fable, to apply it to a Moral or Philosophical Sense, donner un Sens moral ou philosophique à une Fable. Allotted. The Tribe of Levi was particularly allotted for the Church, la Tribu de Levi fut choisie entre les autres pour le Service de l'Eglise. to Allow. As, he allows himself to be a Schismatick, il s'avoue être un Schismatique. Allowance. 'Tis printed with allowance, il est imprimé avec permission, ou avec connivence. Almost, quasi. The common French Words for Almost are presque, à peu pres. But in some Cases quasi may be used. Altercation. The Debates were not carried on without great Altercations, les Affaires qu'on y mit sur le tapis furent agitées de part & d'autre avec bien des Contestations. Alternately, or alternatively, alternativement, tour à tour. Amaranth, or Flower gentle, Amarante, sorte de Fleur.	Amazement. As, it is to me a matter of amazement, c'est une Chose qui me surprend fort. Amazing, surprenant, étonnant. An amazing Stupidity, une Stupidité surprenante. Ambitious. There was never any that was not ambitious; nay some are ambitious only to be talkt of, and since they cannot be notable, they would be notorious; with Cain they will be marked, though for Murderers, il n'y a jamais eu personne qui n'ait été ambitieux; il y en a même qui ont une vaine ambition de rouler sur les Langues, & qui pour suppléer au défaut de Merite tâchent de se rendre infames par quelque Crime; semblables à Cain, ils veulent être marquez à toute force, fût ce d'une Marque d'Opprobre. to Amuse. As, it cannot but amuse a Mans mind to think what it should be, on ne peut pas s'empêcher de considérer ce que c'est. Anatomically, suyvant les Regles de l'Anatomie. Anatomically described, decrit suyvant les Regles de l'Anatomie. Anemone, or Wind-flower, Anemone, sorte de Fleur. Anger. As, you'll make me have anger, vous ferez la Cause qu'on me grondera. Angling. As, an angling Rod, une Verge de Pêcheur, (and not Perebe, as you have it in the second Part.) Angry. I am angry with my self for it, je m'en fai mauvais gré. Angulosity, a word used in Philosophy. As, to imagine Angulosity in a Quantity infinitely little, se figurer des Angles dans un Atome. Animadversive. The animadversive Faculty, la Faculté consideratrice. Animality, Faculté animale. Anniversary. As, the anniversary Feast of a Saint, l'Anniversaire d'un Saint. Answerableness, rapport. Their answerableness to it, le rapport qu'ils ont à cela. Antecedaneous, as Antecedent. Antecedent. The Knowledge of the Name of a Thing is antecedent to the Knowledge of its Nature, la Connoissance du Nom de la Chose precede la Connoissance de sa Nature. Antelope. See Antilope. Antichristian, antichrétien. As, the antichristian Empire, l'Empire antichrétien. An antichristian Doctrine, une Doctrine antichrétienne. Antichristianism, the Antichristian Empire, l'Antichristianisme, ou l'Empire Antichrétien. Antilope, a sort of wild Beast, Gazelle, sorte de Bête sauvage. See Gazelle in the first Part. Antitype, or figure, type, ou figure. The Bread and Wine are Antitypes of the Body and Blood of our Saviour, le Pain & le Vin sont les Figures du Corps & du Sang de nôtre Sauveur. Anxiety, difficulté. The Anxieties of Philosophy, les Epines (ou Difficultez) de la Philosophie. Anxious. As, an anxious Search into Philosophy, Recherche que l'on fait avec grande application sur des Matieres de Philosophie. Apertly, or openly, ouvertement. He did it very apertly, il l'a fait fort ouvertement. Apogee, Apogée. Apogee is that Point of the Heaven, wherein the Sun or any other Planet is furthest from the Center of the Earth. The opposite Point whereto is the Perigee, described in the second Part. Apologetical. An Apologetical Speech, une Apologie, un Discours qui tient lieu d'Apologie. Apostolick. As, the Apostolick Faith, la Foi Apostolique. The Apostolick Ages, les Siecles qui ont suivi la Foi Apostolique, les premiers Siecles du Christianisme. Appetite.

Out-case, Étui de dehors.

Outlawry. 'Tis a Punishment for such as being called into Law, and lawfully sought, do contemptuously refuse to appear. Bracton says, he must be called at five Counties, a Month being between every County. And, if he appear not within that Time, he shall be pronounced out of the King's Protection, and deprived of the benefit of the Law. The Effect of which is divers. For, if he be Outlawed at the Suit of another in a Civil Cause, he shall forfeit all his Goods and Chattels to the King. If upon Felony, then he shall forfeit all his Lands and Tenements which he hath in Fee, or for Life, and his Goods and Chattels. Tunc gerit Caput Lupinum, sicutque Judicium portat; & meritis sine Lege pereat, qui secundum Legem vivere recusaverit, says Bracton.

Owing. These Advantages are as much owing to their own Courage as the rest were to their Enemies Fears, ces Avantages qu'ils ont remportez sont le Fruit de leur Valeur, au lieu que les précédens sont des Marques visibles de la Contermination des Enemis.

Paddle-staff, Ratissoire.

Palanque, a Piece of Fortification, Palanque, sorte de Fortification.

Palatine. See County, in the Second Part.

Papacy. Under this Word, in the Second Part, read Dignité, instead of Dinacé.

Quentin, a sort of French Linnen-cloth that comes from S. Quentin in Picardy, Toile de S. Quentin.

Question. See to Give, in these Additions.

Quietists, Quietistes.

This is a new sprung Sect, bred and born in Italy, the Father whereof is one Dr. Molinos. If the publick Relations we have had of his new Tenets be true and unfalsified, they are generally of such a strange Character, that I cannot call 'em better than a Spiritual sort of Neapolitan Disease. Quietists they seem to be called, from their calm, mental, and speechless way of addressing themselves to God, excluding all Oral Prayers, and raised Affections. Quittance. As, in this the Jews cried quittance with them, en ceci les Juifs leur rendoient la pareille.

Racing. As, the Art of Racing, l'Art d'élever les Chevaux pour la Course.

Rack. You put me upon the Rack, when you desire such a Thing of me, c'est me donner l'esquipade, (c'est mettre mon Esprit à la Torture) que de me demander une chose de cette nature.

Secondary. As, a secondary Substance, une Substance produite par une autre.

to Seize upon, usurper.
Charles the fifth seized upon several Places in Italy, Charles Quint usurpa plusieurs Places en Italie.

Sembrief, in Musick, Semi-brieve, Terme de Musique.

Semi-quaver, un demi-fredon.
to Send, pancher.

The Ship sends much that way (in the Sea-Phrase) le Vaisseau panche fort de ce côté là.

When a Ship, whether under Sail or at an Anchor, doth fall with her Head or Stern deep in the Trough of the Sea (that is, into the Hollow betwixt two Billows) the saying is, that she fends much that way, be it either a Stern or a Head.

to Sent. As, I sent him out, that is, I have him in the Wind, je l'ai où il en est.

Septième, at Picket, a Sequence of seven Cards, une Septième, ou Sequence de Sept Cartes, au Jeu de Piquet.

Sessions, or Petty Sessions. See Statute, in the Second Part.

Set, Garniture.

A Set of Buttons, une Garniture de Boutons.

Or thus, Adjectively. As, a set Form of Prayer, un Formulaire de Prières.

to Set. As, to set a fine gloss upon a Thing, donner du lustre à une chose.

She hath set forth all her Charms, elle a déplié tous ses Charmes.

Shape. As, the shape of ones Face, le tour du Visage.

Sharp, acéré.

Poverty is a sharp Weapon, la Pauvreté est un Glaive bien acéré.

Sheriff. A l'Explication que j'ai faite de cette Magistrature dans la Seconde Partie, ajoutons ici une chose d'Importance. C'est que le Sheriff de la Province choisit les Arbitres de la Vie & de la Mort des Personnes qui sont atteintes de quelque Crime. Je veux dire les Jurez, qui décident en Angleterre du Sort des Personnes qu'on juge; puis que, suivant leur Rapport sur le Procès, elles sont absoutes ou condamnées.

to Shift off one Thing for another, se défaire adroitement d'une chose pour en avoir une autre.

Shock, a Shock (or six Sheaves) of Corn, six Gerbes de Blé.

to Shock, oppugn, or be contray to, choquer.

Nothing do's more than this shock Transubstantiation, il n'y a rien qui choque plus la Doctrine de la Transubstantiation.

Shoot (Subst.) coup, un coup que l'on a tiré (par exercice, ou divertissement.)

As, I shot three good shoots, j'ai tiré trois bons coups.

 to Testify. As, this Field shall testify my Valour, ce Camp sera Temoin de ma Valeur.
 Testimony. This Temple is a Testimony of his Magnificence, ce Temple est Temoin de sa Magnificence. to Thank. Il faut remarquer sur ce Mot une Maniere Angloise. C'est que, quand on demande en Anglois à un Ami comment il se porte, s'il se porte bien, la Reponse est ordinairement, Very well, I thank ye, cd. Fort bien, Je vous remercie. C'est ce qu'on ex-prime ordinairement en François en ces Mots, Fort bien Graces à Dieu, Fort bien pour vous servir, ou à votre Service. Cependant on trouvera l'Expression Angloise assez juste & raisonnable, si l'on considère, que le Remercement qui s'y fait est par rapport à la bonté qu'on a de s'enquerir de nôtre Santé.

to Throw himself away, s'exposer à toutes sortes de Malheurs, se perdre, se ruiner.

Thus. As, thus much for that, c'est assez parlé de cela.

To. As, I am unpaid to this Day, je ne suis pas encore payé.

'Tis lost to him, cela est perdu pour lui.

Cette Preposition To a encore un Sens tout particulier, que j'ai oublié dans la Seconde Partie. Comme quand on dit, Pomeran was lost to the Electour of Brandenburg, qui signifie Mot pour Mot, la Pomeranie fut perdue à l'Electeur de Brandebourg.

Au lieu que l'Anglois veut dire, la Pomeranie fut perdue pour la Suede, & tomba entre les mains de cet Electeur.
